Egypt Warns U.S. On Gulf Involvement

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Egyptian envoy has warned the United States to avoid involvement in Egypt's blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba — termed by the Israeli ambassador "our second lung."

Ambassador Mostafa Kamel of Egypt said Wednesday that if a third party enters the Arab-Israeli dispute, "this will really make the crisis serious."

His statement came after a one-hour session with Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

President Johnson met with his Cabinet to discuss the crisis, but the White House continues to remain silent on any developments. This follows a policy, announced last week, of working through diplomatic channels to resolve the dispute.

The State Department denied newspaper reports that Turkey has pledged to block U.S. use of Turkish bases if war breaks out in the Middle East.

Robert J. McCloskey, State Department press officer, said the question hadn't arisen. He said there are no U.S. bases in Turkey, but acknowledged some Turkish facilities are available to the United States under various agreements.

Other U.S. officials said privately U.S. involvement in the Middle East would not require use of Turkish bases.

McCloskey also refused to discuss the Egyptian-Jordanian mutual defense pact — solemnized at a meeting Tuesday of Egypt's President Gamal Abdel Nasser and Jordan's King Hussein, long-time foes.

George Christian, White House press secretary, did say Wednesday's Cabinet session included discussion of petroleum. The Arab nations are major oil exporters and U.S. companies are involved heavily in Middle East oil operations.

Shortly after Kamel's news conference, his Israeli counterpart — Ambassador Avraham Harman — said the foundations of international law and order are at stake in the present crisis.

Speaking to the Rabbinical Assembly of America, Harman pictured the Gulf of Aqaba as "our second lung" through which "Israel breathes in its relations with Africa and Asia."

Egypt's blockade of the gulf thus is not just "a question of abstract principle or national prestige," added Harman.

The first lung, the Suez Canal, has for some time been cut off to Israeli shipping by Egypt.

The Defense Department announced during the day that the 41,000-ton aircraft carrier Intrepid is scheduled to begin passing through the Suez Canal, in Egypt sometime this evening.

A spokesman said Egyptians gave the carrier routine clearance to use the canal.

Officials remained silent, however, on whether the big ship would be stationed in the Red Sea and thus available if needed in any Middle East explosion. Diplomatic sources said the ship was headed to the Far East.

Walkout Staged By Trade Unions

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Four trade unions struck the Western Pennsylvania construction industry today as several others continued negotiations.

Striking unions are Boilermakers Local 154; Operating Engineers Local 66, Painters Union Local 6, all Pittsburgh-based, and Local 115, Plumbers and Steam Fitters Union in Beaver County.

Still talking are Iron Workers Local 3 and the Carpenters District Council, two of the largest trade unions in Western Pennsylvania.

A spokesman for the bricklayers union said a tentative agreement is being signed "on a contractor-by-contractor basis" with some 92 independent construction firms, "and our members with those firms are working."

Union members employed by the 31 contractors represented by the Mason Contractors Association, however, were idle today as the organization and the union have not yet come to terms.

Members of the Plasterer's Union voted Wednesday night to accept a new three-year proposal by the Employing Plasterer's Association of Allegheny County.

Plasterers Business Manager Robert Palmer said the new pact grants a $1.20 an-hour wage increase over the length of the contract and improved fringe benefits.

The boilermakers, engineers and painters strike began at midnight after negotiations for new contracts broke off.

Boilermakers Business Agent Fred Gualtieri said the Boilermakers Employers of the Western Pennsylvania Area, with which the union was negotiating, "did not offer us one cent." Thee are 1,100 boilermakers involved.

The painters struck after their union rejected an offer by the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Painting and Decorating Contractors. About 1,100 union members are affected.

Ambulance Services Due In Chester, Newell Area

Ambulance service is assured for Chester, Newell and surrounding areas in Hancock County when operations are discontinued July 15 by three East Liverpool funeral directors.

A New Cumberland funeral director and a Chester resident both said they will begin serving the area by the deadline in almost simultaneous announcements Wednesday.

Ted Turley, operator of the Turley Funeral Home, told The Review he "definitely" will begin ambulance operations from Newell. He said he has been in contact with officials of the Homer Laughling China Co. relative to use of the old Newell fire house at 6th and Harrison Sts.

"I can't see a community without the service," Turley added. "I had calls from a number of families about a month ago asking me to do something about it."

Meanwhile, Robert L. Pugh of 285 Indiana Ave., Chester, has tentatively announced he will begin a similar service to Chester, Newell and rural northern Hancock County on July 15.

Pugh, a former employe of the Arner Funeral Home, now works for the Standard Oil Co. of Ohio.

Pugh said he will obtain ambulances in time to begin service on the July date. He did not disclose what rates will be charged. Meetings are being scheduled with officials, he added, to arrange an orderly changeover. His operation will be based in Chester.

Born in East Liverpool, Pugh has resided in Chester virtually his lifetime. He said he has had 14 years professional experience in addition to extensive emergency training.

Trained personnel have been obtained to man the ambulances 24 hours a day, he declared.

Critics, Backers Of Viet Policy Join To Support Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senatorial critics and backers of President Johnson's Vietnam war course are joining forces in support of action to preserve Israel from the pincers of war-threatening Arab nations.

While any immediate solution for the crisis triggered by Egypt's closing of the Gulf of Aqaba to Israeli shipping obviously eludes them, they agree the United States has commitments it must carry out to preserve Israel's territorial integrity.

Surprisingly, some of the most vigorous critics of U.S. involvement in Vietnam are willing to go it alone in the Middle East if that is necessary to save the Jewish state.

One of these, Sen. Ernest Gruening, D-Alaska, told the Senate Wednesday it was commendable for the United States to seek cooperation from other nations to end the Middle East crisis — something he said it was too bad it didn't do in Vietnam.

But if other nations do not respond, Gruening said, this country must act alone to assemble the necessary military force to keep the Gulf of Aqaba open to all shipping.

"The United States cannot stand idly by and permit its flagships to be searched by Egypt on the high seas," he said.

"Nor can the United States stand idly by and permit Egypt to starve Israel, for the United States has definite ccommitments to Israel — commitments given repeatedly in no uncertain terms by presidents from President Truman on."

This contrasted with the previously expressed view of Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., that the United States should make it clear in advance that it will not act alone. Stennis, who has complained that political restrictions are limiting the military effort in Vietnam, said this country cannot become "the sole policeman of the entire world."

Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who has opposed escalation of the Vietnam war, called for a multination accord on the Middle East.

He added: "But United States exploration of this possibility should not be misconstrued as any weakening of our solemn undertaking" to "honor our

Urges Both Sides To Cool Off While Diplomats Spur Bid

CAIRO (AP) — Troops from Iraq and Kuwait joined Arab forces massed in Egypt against Israel today as Britain urged the maritime powers to declare the Arab-surrounded Gulf of Aqaba open to all ships including Israel's.

The United States pushed for adoption by the U.N. Security Council of a resolution urging both the Arabs and Israelis to cool off while diplomats continued efforts to resolve the Middle East crisis.

The United States was told by Egypt to avoid involvement in Egypt's announced blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba and by Israel that not only Israel's interests but the foundations of international law are at stake in the Aqaba issue. The gulf leads to the Israeli port of Elath, through which 90 per cent of the Jewish nation's oil is imported.

In a pointed warning to Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser, British Foreign Secretary George Brown told the House of Commons that the British government will consider any unilateral closing of the Gulf of Aqaba an act of belligerence.

Brown said his government is seeking a clear declaration from the international martime community that "the Gulf of Aqaba is an international waterway in which and through which vessels of all nations have the right of passage."

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson refused to tell Commons what he would do if Egypt tried to bar any British ships from the gulf. But he repeated an assurance by Brown that arrangements were being made to meet such a situation.

With a British naval buildup already reported around Aden, at the southern end of the Red Sea, the British aircraft carrier Hermes was recalled to Aden because of the crisis. She had been en route to the Far East.

Another carrier, the U.S. Navy's 41,000-ton Intrepid, was scheduled to pass through the Suez Canal into the Red Sea today with 78 jet fighters aboard, but diplomatic sources said she was bound for Vietnam.

Senate Passes Bill To Ban Racial Bias On State Projects

BULLETIN

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Gov. James A. Rhodes said Thursday he would sign into law the emergency bill banning racial discrimination in hiring on state projects as soon as he gets it from the legislature. Legislative leaders indicated they also will sign the bill and pass it along to Rhodes—possibly Thursday.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP— A comprehensive bill designed to help Ohio cope with the growing problem of highway safety was due for passage today in the Ohio house.

More than two years of study, capped by eight weeks of exhaustive committee hearings, went into the measure sponsors claim will give the state one of the finest programs in the nation.

Majority Republicans predicted passage but said they would leave to uncertain floor fate an "implied consent" provision that calls for alcohol blood tests of suspected drunken drivers.

The highway safety measure was the second major proposal to face the lawmakers this week. Tuesday, the Senate passed 31-0 an emergency bill to ban racial discrimination in hiring for state projects.

An expected floor fight by minority Democrats failed to develop but party leaders said in speeches that the bill doesn't go far enough and that it actually would not be needed if Ohio's present civil rights laws were enforced.

In other developments, the House passed a bill outlawing common law marriages in Ohio after January 1970, and the Senate Agriculture and State agencies Committee recommended passage of a widely revamped bill to revise Ohio's banking laws.

The house bill to ban discrimination now goes to Gov. James A. Rhodes who said he

U.S. Casualties Hit New Record

SAIGON (AP — An American armored force charged today into a huge guerrilla fortress uncovered on the South Vietnamese coast by one of the war's most spectacularly successful naval bombardment.

The coastal action was announced as the U.S. Command reported the highest American casualties of the war, the greatest monthly loss of U.S. planes in raids over North Vietnam and a record monthly toll of North Vietnamese MIGs.

U.S. casualties last week totaled 2,941—313 killed, 2,615 wounded and 12 missing or captured. The command said 36 U.S. warplanes were lost over North Vietnam during May, three more than the previous high last July, while a record 27 Communist jets were shot down in dogfights during the month.

The naval bombardment took place in Quang Ngai Province—one of the most firmly held Viet Cong strongpoints in the country—and uncovered a vast complex of bunkers, trenches and fortifications.

Firing 300 rounds of 5-inch rockets a minute, a Navy rocket ship opened up on the coastal area Wednesday. Within minutes the beach was a holocaust and it was evident the rocket ship had unearthed a major Red fortress.

Shattering secondary explosions began to rise from ammunition stores hidden in the bunkers. One massive explosion ripped a crater 30 feet across.

The screaming rockets, which land in clustered bursts of 10, ripped open 77 Communist bunkers and uncovered and partially collapsed almost a mile of twisted trenches.

Helicopters zipping over the smouldering field counted only five bodies, but the armored force which sped into the area this morning quickly ran into a firefight and killed 18 more Red soldiers.

Fighting was continuing at last report.

The area was littered with booby traps exploded by the rocket bombardment. Smoldering, twisted logs jutted from the wrecked fortifications.

Shafer Urges $267 Million Tax Package

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer submitted a $267 million tax package to the General Assembly today without proposing the immediate imposition of a personal income tax.

The chief executive said that by cutting his proposed $1.861 billion budget by some $70 million he was able to avoid the necessity of the income tax to meet obligations in the new fiscal year.

Egypt Warns U.S. On Gulf Involvement

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Egyptian envoy has warned the United States to avoid involvement in Egypt's blockade of the Gulf of Aqaba — termed by the Israeli ambassador "our second lung."

Shafer Urges $267 Million Tax Package

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Shafer submitted a $267 million tax package to the General Assembly today without proposing the immediate imposition of a personal income tax.

Shafer, however, asked the legislature to enact such a tax effective next Jan. 1, ranging from a low of one-tenth of 1 per cent to a high of 1 per cent, to take effect once the state budget exceeds $1.9 billion.

The chief executive said that by cutting his proposed $1.861 billion budget by some $70 million he was able to avoid the necessity of the income tax to meet obligations in the new fiscal year.

Gott Elected As President Of U.S. Steel

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A "hometown boy who made good" is taking over as president of the giant U.S. Steel Corp., the nation's largest steel producer.

Pittsburgh — born Edwin H. Gott, 59, was elected to the high post Wednesday as successor to Leslie B. Worthington, who steps down June 30 at the mandatory retirement age of 65.

Gott, a graduate of the city's Peabody High School and Lehigh University, joined U.S. Steel in the depression year of 1937 as a production man.

Worthington, English — born son of a coal miner who came to this country at age four and grew up in the small mining community of Witt, Ill., started with U.S. Steel as a sales trainee and cut his industrial teeth on the marketing end of the business.

He'll continue to serve on the board of directors and executive committee.

Gott started his industrial career with another Pittsburgh firm, Koppers Co., in 1930 and seven years later joined U. S. Steel as an industrial engineer at the Youngstown, Ohio, works.

He made a couple of jumps to midwest plants, then moved back to Youngstown in 1951 as general superintendent. Then, he made a series of big moves.

In 1953, he became general manager, operations-steel, and in 1956 was promoted to vice president, operations-steel.

He moved up to vice president-production, steel producing divisions, in 1958. The next year he was appointed administrative vice president — central operations, steel and coal, and later in the same year he was elevated to executive vice president-production.

A member of the policy-making elite in U.S. Steel, Gott travels around the country a great deal, but has time for civic affairs. He holds posts in the Boy Scouts, Pittsburgh's Children's Hospital, the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council and other organizations.

During Worthington's presidency, the corporation embarked on an enormous capital improvement program that cost millions.

Another highlight was groundbreaking last March for a 64-story headquarters building on Grant Street in downtown Pittsburgh.

Recently, Worthington stepped down as chairman of the American Iron and Steel Institute. In that post, he waged an industry battle against the flow of foreign steel into this country.

Gott and his wife, Mary, have two married daughters, a son on active duty in the Navy and five grandchildren.

would sign it immediately to cover construction contracts now under negotiation.

Under the bill, any contract for a public project will become void and unenforceable unless hiring sources assure their ranks are free of discrimination due to race, color, religion, national origin, or ancestry. Trades unions also would have to certify that they have nonwhites as well as whites available for job referrals.

Sen. Charles J. Carney D-33 Youngstown, told the Senate he would support the measure but he called it unnecssary and said he had "sad feelings about the evident hypocricy on the part of some of the people involved."

Carney contended, "This bill would not be needed if we provided the Civil Rights Commission with funds to enforce the law we wrote in 1959."

Senate Democratic Leader Frank W. King D-11 Toledo, who also is president of the Ohio AFL-CIO, voted for the measure but contended it will not be enforceable.

He referred to the provision requiring unions to have nonwhites among members and said, "People simply will not be available, particularly among the skilled trades. If they're not there you can't pick them out of thin air."

In other business, the Senate passed and sent to the House measures to require an audit of the State Auditor's Office every four years, permit accused persons in bastardy cases to post bond in the county where they are arrested, and revise traffic manslaughter laws to make them applicable as felonies only when a death results from drunken driving, reckless operation, or drag racing.

The House vote on the common law marriages bill came after 90 minutes of floor debate. Sponsoring Rep. Carl B. Stokes D-44 Cleveland contended opponents "real complaints" arise because it would "deprive lawyers of a very lucrative practice" resulting from legal complications of such marriages now recognized in Ohio.

The highway safety bill, sponsored by Rep. Gordon M. Scherer R-71 Cincinnati, and others, includes the following major provisions:

–Random inspection of vehicles by the Ohio Highway Patrol.

– Implied consent permitting testing of suspected drunken drivers. Drivers may refuse to undergo tests but refusal may be used as evidence in court.

Temporary permits would be increased from 50 cents to $4. Those for operators and chauffeur's and renewals would go from 75 cents to $4. A fee of $4 would be established for motorcycle licenses.

der. But the arrivals underlined the growing Arab unity Nasser is forging.

An advance unit of the Iraqi army arrived by plane in Egypt Wednesday, and more Iraqi troops were scheduled to arrive today. Among them was the son of Iraqi President Abdul Rahman Aref, a young lieutenant.

Cairo Radio said an army contingent from Kuwait also arrived in Egypt.

In Jordan, the latest Arab recruit to Nasser's cause, reservists rolled into an army camp about four hours' drive from the Israeli border Wednesday for outfitting with American and British weapons. "Victory will be ours," they chanted.

Jordan came into the anti-Israel front when King Hussein and Nasser signed a mutual defense pact Tuesday. Despite the pact, Syria's socialist regime kept up its propaganda attacks on Hussein, and Nasser sent a mission to Damascus in an attempt to patch up this breach in Arab unity.

In Israel, mobilization of armed forces left a manpower shortage and the government extended the work week from 47 hours to a maximum of 71.

Israel's three religious political parties formed a coalition of their 16 members in the Knesset —parliament—and called for creation of a broadly based "emergency cabinet" including opposition members. Many leading Israeli politicians were urging Premier Levi Eshkol to relinquish the post of defense minister and give it to Gen. Moshe Dayan or Gen. Yigal Alon, both former army chiefs of staff.

In a broadcast to his troops, israeli Chief of Staff Itzhak Rabin said they had the power "not only to repulse the enemies, but to defeat them on their own soil."

Israeli Ambassador Abraham Harman told the Rabbinical Assembly of American in Washington that the Gulf of Aqaba is "our second lung" through which "Israel breathes in its relations with Africa and Asia."

He spoke shortly after Ambassador Mostafa Kamel of Egypt warned at a Washington news conference that if a third party enters the Arab-Israeli dispute, "this will really make the crisis serious." Kamel had just met for an hour with Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

At U.N. headquarters in New York, the United States took the initiative to get Security Council action on the crisis by introducing a resolution calling on all nations to exercise restraint.

The council adjourned until Friday so delegates could discuss the resolution. Some diplomats thought the United States might get the nine council votes necessary for adoption of the resolution but said the Soviet Union would veto it if Egypt desired.

U.S. Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg and Soviet Delegate Nikolai T. Fedorenko are expected to confer on the resolution.

The semiofficial Turkish news agency said the Soviet submarine tender Magomet Gadzhiev passed from the Black Sea through the Bosporus. The Turkish naval command said in all 10 Soviet warships will pass through the Bosporus, the Marmara Sea and the Dardanelles within a week to join about a dozen Soviet naval vessels already in the eastern Mediterranean.

With large units of the U.S. 6th Fleet maneuvering in the eastern Mediterranean, the Soviet Union began strengthening its small flotilla in the area.

Better Than They Expected

The traffic safety experts who take the shine off holidays with morbid predictions of the highway death toll admit things were better than they expected during the Memorial Day weekend.

They had predicted up to 750 deaths. It is likely the total will remain just over 600. The experts admit things are getting better, thanks to assorted campaigns to keep them from getting worse.

There needs to be more emphasis on the positive in traffic safety.

Americans are compiling a fantastically brilliant record of highway safety.

If all states were to go to the mat realistically with the problem of drunken drivers and other chronic menaces, the highway death toll could be pared to an irreducible minimum.

It is not far from an irreducible minimum now, when it is considered that millions of persons of varying skill drive billions of miles at high speed on road often not safe at any speed.

The increasing skill of the ordinary run of drivers should be rewarded with realistic laws to take chronically unsafe drivers off the highways. There is no mystery about the identity of these chronic menaces.

They have been in so many scrapes their driver licenses have been lifted. When all the states have laws to lift auto tags when driver licenses have been lifted, highways will be safer than staying at home.

In the meantime, the highway death toll is leveling off at a time when millions more autoists are traveling billions more miles at ever-higher speeds.

Their driving is incredibly good.

We Expected Far Too Much

It behooves all meteorological philosophers to take a new slant on June this year.

Meteorological philosophers never complain about weather.

They live with it on its terms. They try to understand what causes the terms to be as they are and do not complain.

This year, the month of May, which was not merry, tested the philosophers. What it did to the rest of us was make us blow our meteorological faith.

We finally reached a point of explosive despair when it was impossible to have hope. We gave up. We threw in our barometers, weather vanes and wind gauges. We quit expecting decent weather and glumly mucked through the most dismal spell of excessive precipitation and cold air masses in the memory of man.

So now we come to the fabled month of June.

We must not make the mistake we made about May. We expected too much of May.

We expect nothing from June, except perfect days, memorable nights of black velvet skies and twinkling stars, growing weather for corn, blooming weather for roses, a minimum of thunderstorms and a favorable twist to all upper air currents.

If necessary, we will transfer our really high hopes to July.

The Strait And Narrow

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON

If it were just a matter of bugle-blowing, calling men to the colors and whipping up patriotic frenzy and hatred in Israel, Egypt, Jordan, Syria and elsewhere in the Middle East the crisis there might melt away without war.

But Egyptian President Gammal Abdel Nasser gave all of it a showdown tone when he barred Israeli shipping from the Gulf of Aqaba, and announced he could never be persuaded to drop his blockade.

Elath, at the southeast tip of Israel on the north end of the Gulf of Aqaba, is its port for direct shipping to and from Asia and East Africa. Ninety per cent of Israel's oil is imported through Elath.

If Nasser can keep it closed to all vessels bound for Israel through the Gulf of Aqaba, then they will have to travel around all of Africa and through the whole length of the Mediterranean.

Since he seized the Suez Canal in 1956 Nasser has barred oil shipping to or from Israel through that channel, which lies within Egyptian territory.

BUT THE Gulf of Aqaba, connected with the Red Sea, is bounded by four nations: Israel and Jordan at its northern tip, then farther down, Egypt on the west and Saudi Arabia on the east.

The United States has declared the Gulf of Aqaba an international waterway. The Suez Canal might be considered the same but, after the uproar over Nasser's seizure of it, the world permitted him to bar Israeli shipping from it.

Eventually, as the result of pressure in the present furor, Nasser may agree to let ships bound for Elath use the Gulf of Aqaba so long as they do not bear the Israeli flag.

But, if he is permitted to do that, he will have established his right to bar ships, if only Israeli-owned ships, from the gulf. Then, the next time the mood seized him, he could argue his right to bar all shipping bound for Elath

After the Middle East war which followed the creation of the state of Israel in 1948, Nasser did bar Israeli shipping from the gulf, but he lost that control after the Israeli-British-French attack on Egypt in 1956.

At that time the Israeli forces swept down through Egypt's Sinai Peninsula - bounded on the east by the Gulf of Aqaba and on the west by the Gulf of Suez — and drove Egyptian troops from Sharm el Sheik, a key point in this whole business.

It's at the southeast tip of the Sinai Peninsula, overlooking the Strait of Tiran which links the Gulf of Aqaba with the Red Sea. That straight has a 90-yard-wide opening, making it easy for Nasser to dominate all shipping through it.

The channel through the strait lies along the Egyptian shore. So long as he could put troops and cannon at Sharm el Shiek — before 1956 — Nasser could keep all Israeli shipping out of it and thus out of the Gulf of Aqaba.

HE LOST THAT control, of course, when the Israelis took the strategic point in 1956. They agreed to leave it in 1957, after peace was restored, on condition that a U.N. peace-keeping force be stationed at Sharm el Sheik to assure Israel use of the Strait of Tiran and the Gulf of Aqaba.

But last month, when Nasser ordered the U.N. forces out of all Egypt, they had to leave Sharm to him. He promptly manned it and banned Israeli shipping again.

Yet, in 1958 a U.N. conference on the law of the sea voted overwhelmingly against forbidding "innocent passage of foreign ships through straits" connecting international waters with the high seas.

The Arab nations were implicitly forbidden to halt ships bound for Elath through the straight and the gulf. But the Arab states, including Egypt, abstained from the vote. So Nasser can say he was not a party to such a ruling.

Israel has indicated it won't stand still more than a few weeks for what Nasser did. If, by the end of that time Nasser hasn't backed down and the United Nations can't find a solution, the shooting probably will begin.

Perfect Solo

England's Sir Francis Chichester is the first man to complete a solo voyage around the world with only one stop. He made the 28,500-mile journey in a 53-foot yacht.

In so doing, he proved age is not a handicap for the man with enough grit to set a tough goal and follow it up. He is 65.

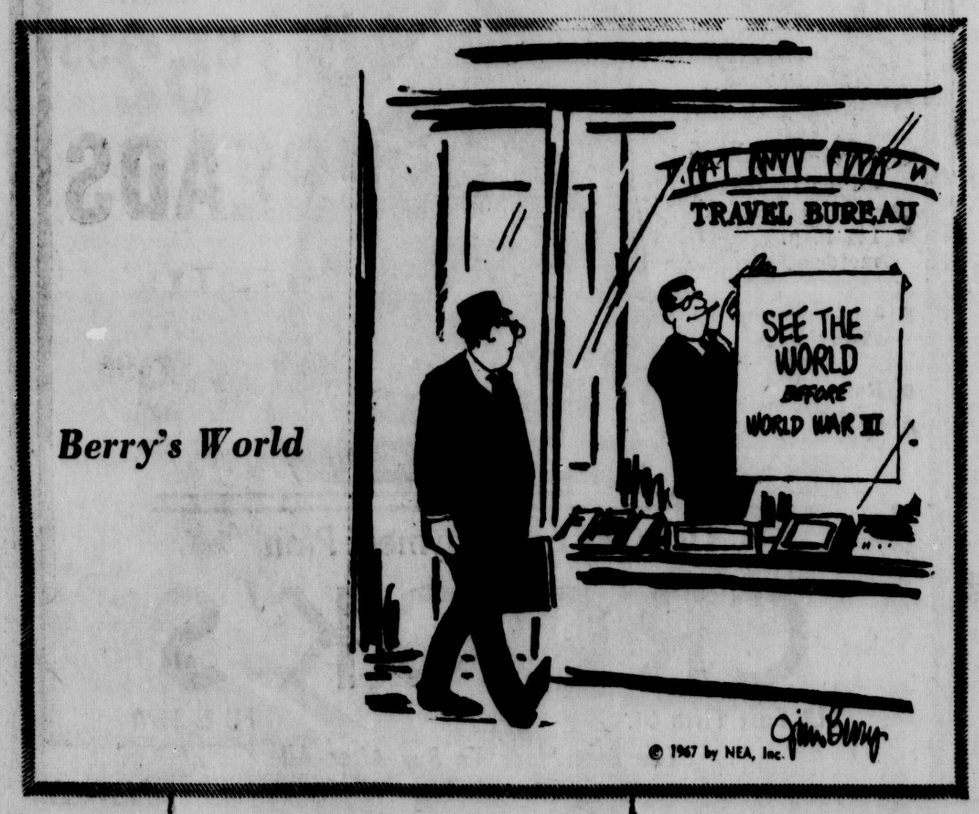

Alone on the sea for a total of 226 days, his experience and courage kept him steady on course in times of stress.

Strangely enough, as he came ashore, he said he was looking forward to peace and quiet. Apparently the poet's glimpse of soothing sea and sky doesn't hold true when the sea is an enemy to be conquered and is just waiting for your mistake so it can claim an easy victory.

At any rate, it was a long, hard voyage. The veteran seaman deserves a rest.

It is not only a personal achievement, but also an attainment that can be shared by all men over 60 who claim life begins at the six-decade mark.

At least it doesn't end there.

This has been a bad week for the doves and the hawks. Nasser's decision to close the Gulf of Aqaba to Israel has made hawks out of doves and doves out of hawks. The doves of the past want the United States to act immediately and the hawks of Vietnam want us to cool it in the Middle East.

"Brinkerhoff, how can you talk that way when you've been one of the leading advocates of peace in the world?"

"Now, wait a minute, Brinkerhoff. If you're going to be a pacifist, you can't be going around screaming 'kill,' and stabing photos of Nasser in the newpspers."

"That's how much you know about pacifists."

"LET ME ASK you this, Brinkerhoff. Would you advocate the use of force to reopen the Gulf of Aqaba to international shipping?"

"Only if we bomb Caro first, "Brinkerhoff said.

"But you're against bombing. Don't you remember, Brinkerhoff?"

"Stop telling me what I was against. Ask me what I'm for."

"All right, what are you for?"

"Blowing up the Aswan Dam, B-52 raids on the Suez Canal and the complete defoliation of Jordan."

"If I didn't know you better, Brinkerhoff, I would think you've become a hawk."

"I'm not a hawk. I'm a dove who's lost his temper. I say there's only one solution to the Middle East crisis, and that's to escalate. Egypt must be made to pay for its aggression."

"But, Brinkerhoff, the hawks in the United States say the matter should be settled peacefully in the United Nations."

"The hawks are chicken. The United Nations can't settle anything. The only thing the Arabs understand is force. We should nuke 'em."

"Nuke 'em?"

"Give 'em a taste of nuclear weapons and let's see what big shots they are then."

The Road To Tomorrow

By Truman Twill

One thought I have while tooling back and forth between our pocket of poverty in Rosy Fingered Dawn and my home away from home is about the auto of the future.

This is meaningful speculation for me. I began to speculate about the auto of the future when I was very young. I designed cars on a blackboard in the attic — in colored chalk.

They looked like today's sports cars. This happened when the only cars anyone had seen looked like yesterday's horse-drawn buggies. I have had 20-20 vision as far as the future of autos is concerned.

I looked forward at that distant time to cars that would be nimble, with powerful engines that would deliver power smoothly and noiselessly to the driving wheels, to ties that would not blow out every whipstitch, to auto fuel that would be of high, uniform quality and to metal tops that would not leak.

I looked forward to vari-colored paint jobs, batteries that would be better than dry cells, gear boxes that wouldn't have to be double-clutched, non-shimmy steering linkage and four-wheel brakes.

These things came along in due time plus hundreds of others, such as devices to heat the interior of cars, anti-freeze solutions that would avert freezeup and windshield wipers that didn't have to be operated by hand.

There is no need to appoligize for my foresight. Now I am concentrating on the auto of the future, bearing in mind the future does not take as long to materialize as it used to.

The car will be operated by a power cell. Car owners will rent these from licensed dealers, instead of buying gasoline.

On long-distance, high-speed highways, the cells will be hooked up with power conduits built into road surfaces. The hookup will enable the operator to switch to automatic control, until he gets to the exit he wants to use.

Cars on high-speed highways will move at the same speed in predetermined courses. There will be no collisions, no vehicles veering off the road, no sleepy, hypnotized drivers, no hot-rodders.

Car-renting will be commoner than it is now, especially for long-distance travel. Pride of ownership and interest in special vehicles will continue to support a car-dealer industry, but transportation will become the main emphasis.

Most autos will be manufactured for, owned and managed by leasing companies. The leasing companies will be tied in closely with manufacturing companies. Automotive transportation will be tightly managed under central control, instead of loosely mismanaged as it presently is under almost total absence of control on a credit basis.

Autos will have ceased to be semi-consumer items and will have been converted to capital items. What will they look like?

I don't have a picture handy, but on a blackboard in Rosy Fingered Dawn . . .

Political Funds

By David Lawrence

Congressional Review Nears

At last, Congress is coming to grips with the problem of how to finance political campaigns. Up to recent months, the subject has been bypassed. Many irregularities have either been condoned or overlooked.

If candidates for public office must depend on other citizens or on organizations with a vested interest in legislation to put up the money to help elect them, they will inevitably feel under some obligation to repay the favor by their acts in public office.

President Johnson has just submitted to Congress a comprehensive plan. Some of the same points were made in these dispatches in August 1966, including the fact that no candidate except wealthy ones can possibly raise all the money needed nowadays to finance a political campaign and that the government should supply some of the funds.

Even for a presidential campaign alone, the task is overwhelming. This is because large amounts are needed for television and radio and for advertisements in the newspapers, as well as for travel. The cost of actually raising the money has grown, too.

The President in his message to Congress has taken into consideration also the need for election reforms. He suggests a $5,000 limit be placed on the total amount that comes from any organization or any individual or member of his family. Up to now, a citizen could contribute many times that amount by himself giving to various committees and by having relatives do the same.

Mr. Johnson has urged, too, that corporations holding contracts with the government be prohibited from making political contributions at the state and local level. Today, they are only barred from contributing to campaigns for national elections.

Mr. Johnson wisely recommends that the comptroller-general's office should be given complete authority to obtain full reports after each presidential election as to payments that have been made and to audit the expenses of presidential campaigns.

This innovation is long overdue. Obviously, members of committees of Congress have been reluctant to investigate the finances of their own political party.

The President did not make any proposals concerning financing congressional, state and local political primaries and campaigns. But he did say that there is need for an examination of the problem.

When a bill was passed last October by Congress permitting each individual to indicate on his income-tax return that a dollar of his tax money might be used for political contributions by either party, there was widespread dissent.

It was pointed out that the new law did not deal with misuse of political funds and that it would be a bad precedent to give the taxpayer the right to exercise control over how his tax money shall be disbursed by the government.

In comparison with the budget of the U.S. government, the total cost of presidential campaigns is relatively small. But it is nevertheless a large amount for political parties to raise.

The worst aspect of the existing system is that it places parties and candidates under obligation to special interests.

No organization or group of individuals should ever be permitted to wield a financial club over members of Congress or a president.

Lobbying has often been carried on with the aid of campaign contributors. Prices of admission to testimonial dinners should be limited so they will cover merely the expense of the dinner and the rental of a hall.

Much expense for broadcasts and advertisements might will be borne by government. Certainly it would be performing a worthwhile service by using a relatively small amount of taxpayers' money to provide a method of communication between a growing population and the candidates for office.

It is likely now that the whole system of campaign contributions will be carefully reviewed.

There is no need to appoligize for my foresight. Now I am concentrating on the auto of the future, bearing in mind the future does not take as long to materialize as it used to.

The car will be operated by a power cell. Car owners will rent these from licensed dealers, instead of buying gasoline.

On long-distance, high-speed highways, the cells will be hooked up with power conduits built into road surfaces. The hookup will enable the operator to switch to automatic control, until he gets to the exit he wants to use.

Cars on high-speed highways will move at the same speed in predetermined courses. There will be no collisions, no vehicles veering off the road, no sleepy, hypnotized drivers, no hot-rodders.

Car-renting will be commoner than it is now, especially for long-distance travel. Pride of ownership and interest in special vehicles will continue to support a car-dealer industry, but transportation will become the main emphasis.

Most autos will be manufactured for, owned and managed by leasing companies. The leasing companies will be tied in closely with manufacturing companies. Automotive transportation will be tightly managed under central control, instead of loosely mismanaged as it presently is under almost total absence of control on a credit basis.

Autos will have ceased to be semi-consumer items and will have been converted to capital items. What will they look like?

I don't have a picture handy, but on a blackboard in Rosy Fingered Dawn . . .

Political Funds

By David Lawrence

Congressional Review Nears

At last, Congress is coming to grips with the problem of how to finance political campaigns. Up to recent months, the subject has been bypassed. Many irregularities have either been condoned or overlooked.

If candidates for public office must depend on other citizens or on organizations with a vested interest in legislation to put up the money to help elect them, they will inevitably feel under some obligation to repay the favor by their acts in public office.

President Johnson has just submitted to Congress a comprehensive plan. Some of the same points were made in these dispatches in August 1966, including the fact that no candidate except wealthy ones can possibly raise all the money needed nowadays to finance a political campaign and that the government should supply some of the funds.

Even for a presidential campaign alone, the task is overwhelming. This is because large amounts are needed for television and radio and for advertisements in the newspapers, as well as for travel. The cost of actually raising the money has grown, too.

The President in his message to Congress has taken into consideration also the need for election reforms. He suggests a $5,000 limit be placed on the total amount that comes from any organization or any individual or member of his family. Up to now, a citizen could contribute many times that amount by himself giving to various committees and by having relatives do the same.

Mr. Johnson has urged, too, that corporations holding contracts with the government be prohibited from making political contributions at the state and local level. Today, they are only barred from contributing to campaigns for national elections.

Mr. Johnson wisely recommends that the comptroller-general's office should be given complete authority to obtain full reports after each presidential election as to payments that have been made and to audit the expenses of presidential campaigns.

This innovation is long overdue. Obviously, members of committees of Congress have been reluctant to investigate the finances of their own political party.

The President did not make any proposals concerning financing congressional, state and local political primaries and campaigns. But he did say that there is need for an examination of the problem.

When a bill was passed last October by Congress permitting each individual to indicate on his income-tax return that a dollar of his tax money might be used for political contributions by either party, there was widespread dissent.

It was pointed out that the new law did not deal with misuse of political funds and that it would be a bad precedent to give the taxpayer the right to exercise control over how his tax money shall be disbursed by the government.

In comparison with the budget of the U.S. government, the total cost of presidential campaigns is relatively small. But it is nevertheless a large amount for political parties to raise.

The worst aspect of the existing system is that it places parties and candidates under obligation to special interests.

No organization or group of individuals should ever be permitted to wield a financial club over members of Congress or a president.

Lobbying has often been carried on with the aid of campaign contributors. Prices of admission to testimonial dinners should be limited so they will cover merely the expense of the dinner and the rental of a hall.

Much expense for broadcasts and advertisements might will be borne by government. Certainly it would be performing a worthwhile service by using a relatively small amount of taxpayers' money to provide a method of communication between a growing population and the candidates for office.

It is likely now that the whole system of campaign contributions will be carefully reviewed.

Sheriff Ordered To Bring Inmate For New Action

LISBON — Judge Joel H. Sharp of Common Pleas Court directed the sheriff Wednesday to return Sanford A. Davis, 43, formerly of Smiths Ferry, from Ohio State Penitentiary for further proceedings.

The state Supreme Court on April 19 upheld the defendant's appeal from a jury verdict May 15, 1964, convicting him of a charge of armed robbery.

In reversing the trial court, the Supreme Court noted that the prosecuting attorney commented to the jury on the defendant's failure to testify in a preliminary hearing.

Davis and a younger brother, James E. Davis, were charged with taking $200 at gunpoint from Miss Ida and Miss Leoma Ward Aug. 30, 1963, at the sisters' farm home east of Negley.

The younger Davis was tried and acquitted in November 1965.

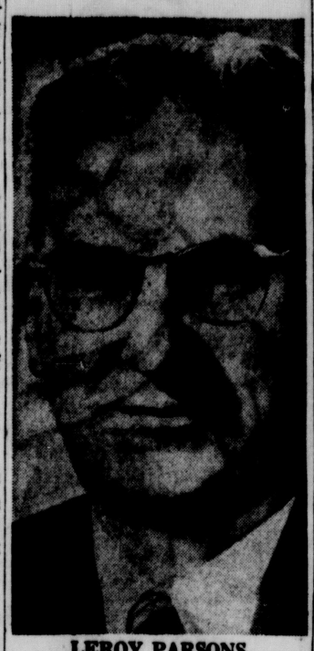

Sanford had served two years of the 10 - to - 25 - year sentence when the high court remanded the case last month.

Car's Older Than Driver

City Driver, 21, Pays $55 In Use Of '35 Model Auto

An East Liverpool motorist paid $55 in fines and costs today in Municipal Court on two charges filed by the Highway Patrol in connection with his operation of an auto that was made 10 years before he was born.

Carl James Horner, 21, of 416 Prospect St. was fined $15 and costs on a charge of driving an unsafe vehicle and $25 and costs on a charge of fictitious registration. He pleaded guilty to both.

THE PATROL reported Horner was cited Saturday at 5:15 p.m. on Route 30 while operating a 1935 Chevrolet that lacked a headlight, a tail light, a brake light, a horn and an emergency brake. A further check showed he was using a license plate issued for a 1964 model auto which he also owns, the patrol said.

Visibly astonished at the age of the auto, Judge Samuel M. Chertoff told Horner: "That car is older than you!"

The defendant said he obtained the 1935 model by trading a 1957 model for which he had paid $50. The judge indicated he may mitigate the sentence later if Horner disposes of the 32-year-old car.

—:—

MEANWHILE, two young motorists who pleaded guilty to speeding 75 miles an hour in a 60-mile zone on the Freeway were fined $15 and costs each and given 15-day suspensions of their operator's permits.

They are William S. Lamp, 22, of Shadyside Ave. and Charles David Jones, 19, of Grimms Bridge Rd. Both were arrested May 25 at 5:05 p. m., the patrol said.

George H. Allmon, 52, of the Y. & O. Rd. was fined $10 and costs on a charge he crashed a stop sign at the junction of the Y. & O. Rd. and Route 30. He was cited by the patrol Wednesday at 6:15 a. m. The arresting officer reported he trailed Allmon after the first violation and noted that he also crashed a stop sign at Route 170 and St. Clair Ave. Ext.

Harry E. Hilton, 21, of 521 Jefferson St., Newell, forfeited a $17.50 bond on a charge of speeding 60 miles an hour in a 50-mile zone on the Freeway. He was cited Sunday at 10:20 p. m.

Omni Club Gives Scholarship And Acts To Disband

A $400 scholarship has been presented to Ellen Rodgers, Wellsville High School senior, by the Omni Boosters Club of Wellsville, whose officers report the club is disbanding.

Jack Glover, president, and Mrs. Glover, secretary, said lack of interest resulted in the decision.

They said a balance of $400 was left after bills were paid for the post-prom event and other expenses and the money remaining was used for the scholarship after a meeting with school officials.

The Glovers said the club has made every effort to cooperate with students, parents and others to continue activities, but except for a few persons, there has been little help.

In reversing the trial court, the Supreme Court noted that the prosecuting attorney commented to the jury on the defendant's failure to testify in a preliminary hearing.

Davis and a younger brother, James E. Davis, were charged with taking $200 at gunpoint from Miss Ida and Miss Leoma Ward Aug. 30, 1963, at the sisters' farm home east of Negley.

The younger Davis was tried and acquitted in November 1965.

Sanford had served two years of the 10 - to - 25 - year sentence when the high court remanded the case last month.

Car's Older Than Driver

City Driver, 21, Pays $55 In Use Of '35 Model Auto

An East Liverpool motorist paid $55 in fines and costs today in Municipal Court on two charges filed by the Highway Patrol in connection with his operation of an auto that was made 10 years before he was born.

Carl James Horner, 21, of 416 Prospect St. was fined $15 and costs on a charge of driving an unsafe vehicle and $25 and costs on a charge of fictitious registration. He pleaded guilty to both.

—:—

THE PATROL reported Horner was cited Saturday at 5:15 p.m. on Route 30 while operating a 1935 Chevrolet that lacked a headlight, a tail light, a brake light, a horn and an emergency brake. A further check showed he was using a license plate issued for a 1964 model auto which he also owns, the patrol said.

Visibly astonished at the age of the auto, Judge Samuel M. Chertoff told Horner: "That car is older than you!"

The defendant said he obtained the 1935 model by trading a 1957 model for which he had paid $50. The judge indicated he may mitigate the sentence later if Horner disposes of the 32-year-old car.

—:—

MEANWHILE, two young motorists who pleaded guilty to speeding 75 miles an hour in a 60-mile zone on the Freeway were fined $15 and costs each and given 15-day suspensions of their operator's permits.

They are William S. Lamp, 22, of Shadyside Ave. and Charles David Jones, 19, of Grimms Bridge Rd. Both were arrested May 25 at 5:05 p. m., the patrol said.

George H. Allmon, 52, of the Y. & O. Rd. was fined $10 and costs on a charge he crashed a stop sign at the junction of the Y. & O. Rd. and Route 30. He was cited by the patrol Wednesday at 6:15 a. m. The arresting officer reported he trailed Allmon after the first violation and noted that he also crashed a stop sign at Route 170 and St. Clair Ave. Ext.

Harry E. Hilton, 21, of 521 Jefferson St., Newell, forfeited a $17.50 bond on a charge of speeding 60 miles an hour in a 50-mile zone on the Freeway. He was cited Sunday at 10:20 p. m.

Omni Club Gives Scholarship And Acts To Disband

A $400 scholarship has been presented to Ellen Rodgers, Wellsville High School senior, by the Omni Boosters Club of Wellsville, whose officers report the club is disbanding.

Jack Glover, president, and Mrs. Glover, secretary, said lack of interest resulted in the decision.

They said a balance of $400 was left after bills were paid for the post-prom event and other expenses and the money remaining was used for the scholarship after a meeting with school officials.

The Glovers said the club has made every effort to cooperate with students, parents and others to continue activities, but except for a few persons, there has been little help.

A broken fan belt was blamed for a minor blaze in a car owned by Carl Pethtel of Lisbon St. Wednesday at 1:06 p. m. in the 1500 block of Lisbon St.

The vehicle was being driven by Tom Bennett of 9th Ave., LaCroft. Firemen from the Pleasant Heights station said the belt broke, causing the engine to overheat and set fire to some grease.

Strike

with the Master Builders Association of Western Pennsylvania, were not available for comment.

A strike by more than 250 members of the Plumbers local went into its second day today.

The plumbers' contract expired in April, but they voted to continue work through May 30.

They walked Wednesday when talks broke off.

Talks between the Masters Builders and the ironworkers and carpenters unions were scheduled for today and Friday.

However, at a big construction project in downtown Pittsburgh, about 60 ironworkers refused to work.

"They are sick," said Frank Fox, union steward on the project for Local 3 of the Iron Workers. "It's not safe to work when you're ill."

Fox said local union officials instructed the men to stay on the job, but some of them felt they shouldn't work without a contract. Other craft unions were at work on the building, a 40-story office building at Liberty Ave. and 6th Ave.

Charlotte Corday was executed for the murder of Marat, leader of the French Revolution.

Ambulance

Ward expressed gratification upon learning of Pugh's announcement. "I'm 100 per cent behind Bob," he said, and added that this might be a solution to the problem in Chester and Newell.

Glenn Hall, a spokesman for Homer Laughlin, said he had talked with Turley yesterday and proposed the funeral director rent the fire house. "I made him an offer and he will make a counter-offer and we will work out some mutual agreement," Hall said.

Turley will run the operation himself, Hall said and will not turn over an ambulance to the fire department.

Hall said the ambulance would serve not only Newell residents, but also area industries, which, he added, is one reason Homer Laughlin is interested.

In making his announcement, Pugh said his equipment would carry complete emergency rescue paraphernalia.

Besides demand oxygen equipment (resuscitator), he added, splints, extra cots, laundry, assorted bandages, bed pans, rubber hose tourniquets, antiseptics, burn dressings, restraining straps and mouth - to - mouth breathing tubes will be provided. Pugh said all this equipment is recommended by the West Virginia Department of Health.

—:—

IN ADDITION, the department requires that standard full - size ambulances, not station wagons, be used.

A law to prohibit the use of station wagons as ambulances anywhere in West Virginia is presently before the House of Delegates.

Pugh noted his equipment would carry other supplies, many of them recommended by the Committee on Trauma of the American College of Surgeons.

A 28-hour oxygen tank, portable resuscitation unit and aspirator, 40 assorted dressings, a poison antidote kit, three auxiliary stretchers in addition to the two cots, two crow bars, 100 feet of one-inch lifeline and a hydraulic jack for use in connection with automobile accidents will be provided.

He said one reason for the extensive equipment is the recent licensing standards announced under the medicare program. Pugh noted they require not only good emergency supplies, but also two advanced Red Cross first - aid traniees. Drivers also must have special certification by the state. In addition, the employes must attend seminars yearly.

THE EAST Liverpool funeral directors, through a spokesman, Wednesday reviewed their reasons for discontinuing the ambulance service. Their statement reads:

"When the funeral directors announced their intentions to discontinue ambulance service it was primarily because of the more demanding government regulations, due to the increased number of calls in recent years and the greater distances covered which have required personnel to be away from their regular duties more often and for longer periods of time.

"By giving 60 days notice of our intentions instead of halting service immediately, we have made it possible for the communities involved to have time to establish adequate service.

"Hundreds of other cities now have municipally - operated ambulances or service by volunteer fire and police groups or private operators.

"It never was intended that the communities should be without proper service. East Liverpool officials are presently taking steps to obtain a private operator for full - time ambulance service.

"In the Chester - Newell area, there is interest by several private companies, but if adequate service does not materialize in the near future, the Arner Funeral Home which operates a facility in Chester is ready to offer its ambulance to any responsible volunteer group which is interested but perhaps hesitant to establish service due to the high cost of equipment.

"The situation in our area is the same as has been faced in Lisbon, Steubenville, Alliance, Youngstown, Wheeling, Huntington, Massillon, Cuyahoga Falls and Lima, where departments of public service have taken charge either by instituting municipally - operated services or contracting with private companies.

"The decision reached by the local funeral directors has not been easy due to their close association with the families in the community. However, their basic responsibility is to provide the best possible funeral service and this must not become secondary to an auxiliary service.

"No announcement has been made by East Liverpool city officials concerning results of their studies into the problem. Mayor George Willshaw has visited several cities around Ohio in an attempt to solve the problem."

The city of Wellsville will not be affected by the move since both funeral directors there have announced no plans to discontinue ambulance service.

Midland funeral directors, likewise, have made no plans for immediate disbandonment.

Vietnam

bered more than 300 men, with tanks, reconnaissance vehicles and jeeps crisscrossing the area. Despite sporadic contacts, the U.S. force was suffering no losses to the enemy troops still around the bunkered area, U.S. spokesmen said.

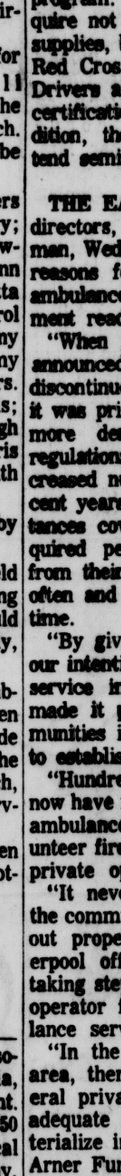

Such a complex could easily house a Communist battalion of 500 men, probably more. It was located just east of the main coastal highway in an area of sand dunes and beach scrub that had been swept before without ground troops detecting anything.

Just to the south, in coastal Binh Dinh Province, U.S. 1st Cavalry Division Airmobile troops were in hot pursuit of a Communist force flushed from a similar but smaller bunker system Wednesday.

With tanks and air support, the cavalrymen scattered the Red force and killed 77 of them, at a cost of four Americans killed and 35 wounded. During the night the remnants of the Red force apparently pulled out, and this morning the cavalrymen pushed inland, seeking the rest of what was estimated as a company — about 150 men — of North Vietnamese regulars.

Just below the demilitarized zone, along South Vietnam's northern border, the heavy fighting of recent weeks lapsed into sporadic contact as U.S. Marines swept the battered slopes of Hill 174 and other nearby commanding ground.

Man Pleads Innocent On 2 Police Charges

Daner Adkins of Crawford Ave. pleaded not guilty today in Municipal Court on police department charges of disturbing the peace by fighting and resisting an officer "in the lawful execution of his duties."

Judge Samuel M. Chertoff set a hearing Tuesday for Adkins. The charges were filed by Patrolman Charles Coen, who said Adkins broke away and fled after he had been placed under arrest on a fighting charge Sunday at 12:20 a. m. on Dresden Ave.

Adkins told the court he will defend himself by proving that he was somewhere else at the time of the alleged incident. The continuance then was granted to allow Adkins time to summon defense witnesses.

A law to prohibit the use of station wagons as ambulances anywhere in West Virginia is presently before the House of Delegates.

Pugh noted his equipment would carry other supplies, many of them recommended by the Committee on Trauma of the American College of Surgeons.

A 28-hour oxygen tank, portable resuscitation unit and aspirator, 40 assorted dressings, a poison antidote kit, three auxiliary stretchers in addition to the two cots, two crow bars, 100 feet of one-inch lifeline and a hydraulic jack for use in connection with automobile accidents will be provided.

He said one reason for the extensive equipment is the recent licensing standards announced under the medicare program. Pugh noted they require not only good emergency supplies, but also two advanced Red Cross first - aid traniees. Drivers also must have special certification by the state. In addition, the employes must attend seminars yearly.

THE EAST Liverpool funeral directors, through a spokesman, Wednesday reviewed their reasons for discontinuing the ambulance service. Their statement reads:

"When the funeral directors announced their intentions to discontinue ambulance service it was primarily because of the more demanding government regulations, due to the increased number of calls in recent years and the greater distances covered which have required personnel to be away from their regular duties more often and for longer periods of time.

"By giving 60 days notice of our intentions instead of halting service immediately, we have made it possible for the communities involved to have time to establish adequate service.

"Hundreds of other cities now have municipally - operated ambulances or service by volunteer fire and police groups or private operators.

"It never was intended that the communities should be without proper service. East Liverpool officials are presently taking steps to obtain a private operator for full - time ambulance service.

"In the Chester - Newell area, there is interest by several private companies, but if adequate service does not materialize in the near future, the Arner Funeral Home which operates a facility in Chester is ready to offer its ambulance to any responsible volunteer group which is interested but perhaps hesitant to establish service due to the high cost of equipment.

"The situation in our area is the same as has been faced in Lisbon, Steubenville, Alliance, Youngstown, Wheeling, Huntington, Massillon, Cuyahoga Falls and Lima, where departments of public service have taken charge either by instituting municipally - operated services or contracting with private companies.

"The decision reached by the local funeral directors has not been easy due to their close association with the families in the community. However, their basic responsibility is to provide the best possible funeral service and this must not become secondary to an auxiliary service.

"No announcement has been made by East Liverpool city officials concerning results of their studies into the problem. Mayor George Willshaw has visited several cities around Ohio in an attempt to solve the problem."

The city of Wellsville will not be affected by the move since both funeral directors there have announced no plans to discontinue ambulance service.

Midland funeral directors, likewise, have made no plans for immediate disbandonment.

bered more than 300 men, with tanks, reconnaissance vehicles and jeeps crisscrossing the area. Despite sporadic contacts, the U.S. force was suffering no losses to the enemy troops still around the bunkered area, U.S. spokesmen said.

Such a complex could easily house a Communist battalion of 500 men, probably more. It was located just east of the main coastal highway in an area of sand dunes and beach scrub that had been swept before without ground troops detecting anything.

Just to the south, in coastal Binh Dinh Province, U.S. 1st Cavalry Division Airmobile troops were in hot pursuit of a Communist force flushed from a similar but smaller bunker system Wednesday.

With tanks and air support, the cavalrymen scattered the Red force and killed 77 of them, at a cost of four Americans killed and 35 wounded. During the night the remnants of the Red force apparently pulled out, and this morning the cavalrymen pushed inland, seeking the rest of what was estimated as a company — about 150 men — of North Vietnamese regulars.

Just below the demilitarized zone, along South Vietnam's northern border, the heavy fighting of recent weeks lapsed into sporadic contact as U.S. Marines swept the battered slopes of Hill 174 and other nearby commanding ground.

Man Pleads Innocent On 2 Police Charges

Daner Adkins of Crawford Ave. pleaded not guilty today in Municipal Court on police department charges of disturbing the peace by fighting and resisting an officer "in the lawful execution of his duties."

Judge Samuel M. Chertoff set a hearing Tuesday for Adkins. The charges were filed by Patrolman Charles Coen, who said Adkins broke away and fled after he had been placed under arrest on a fighting charge Sunday at 12:20 a. m. on Dresden Ave.

Adkins told the court he will defend himself by proving that he was somewhere else at the time of the alleged incident. The continuance then was granted to allow Adkins time to summon defense witnesses.

20 Nuns To Leave Convent To Begin Experiment

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Twenty nuns of the Roman Catholic order of Daughters of the Cross will start leaving their Shreveport convent soon to begin an experimental religious community in Wisconsin.

"What we are doing has the stamp of approval of the Church," Sister Mary Michael, a spokesman for the nuns, said.

"We still have a commitment to live a religious life but we feel we will be more effective in this unstructured type of life."

She said they would wear modern dress and use their legal names. They will live in groups of five or more in Milwaukee apartments and will divide their earnings among the group. No financial support will be provided by the Catholic Church.

"We feel that under the present form of religious life, we can't be optimally effective to the needs of today's world. We feel that in living together in smaller groups we will be freer to administer to the needs of the people," Sister Mary Michael said.

Mother Superior John Roberta of the Daughters of the Cross convent issued a statement after the nuns' announcement

"In the history of the Church different groups within congregations have felt that they wish to do other types of work, that God is asking them to do other expressions of work than that to which their order is dedicated," she said.

"The nuns, through the mind of the Church, are answering the request of Vatican II (second Vatican Council) to go out and live a different type of religious life other than the structure the Daughters of the Cross now has. This is their desire."

The group members range in age from 24 to 54 and it includes one member who has been a nun for 37 years and six who have not professed their final vows.

Their departure will leave the Shreveport-based order with about 60 nuns.

Sister Mary Michael said several of the nuns have applied for jobs in Milwaukee public schools, others will teach in parochial schools or universities and others will pursue other fields of work.

She said the group will not necessarily live in the poor sections of town, for "we are educators and feel that our impact is in the educational field. We are not going to Milwaukee just to work with the poor."

Commenting on the dispensation from the vows of chastity, poverty and obedience, which a nun is required to take, one of the sisters said, "We take vows under two aspects: private vows to God, public vows to the church. We are giving up the public aspect of the vows, not the commitment to God."

Although the group is the first of this order to try such an experiment, and one of the largest groups to leave a single congregation for such a purpose, other nuns have established experimental programs in Milwaukee, Oklahoma City and Connecticut, as well as other sections of the United States.

Son Of Former Greek Premier Will Face Trial

ATHENS (AP) — Greece's military rulers want to give antimonarchist leader Andreas Papandreau back to the United States if they can prove he is still an American citizen.

The sharp-tongued, 47-year-old son of ex-Premier George Papandreou was one of the chief targets of the military junta which seized power on April 21. Both Papandreous were arrested, but the father was put under house arrest later.

The younger Papandreou is accused of leading a conspiracy of leftist army officers who plotted to overthrow King Constantine, withdraw Greece from the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and set up a Socialist state.

Interior Minister Stylianos Patacos said Andreas "will be tried and, whether found guilty or acquitted, he will be deported if he still has his U.S. citizenship."

Papandreou served in the U.S. Navy and became a U.S. citizen after World War II. A diplomatic source said he did not renounce his citizenship but that it was automatically removed when he was elected to the Greek Parliament in February 1964. His wife, the former Margaret Chant of Chicago, and their four children are all U.S. citizens.

If a recipe calls for four cups of cabbage, count on using a pound of the vegetable.

Out Of The Air

By HAL HUMPHREY

No Room For Mort

Hal Humphrey

With its two-way radio shows and TV talk shows, the commercial broadcast industry has created an illusion that it is dealing with all shades of opinion in the political and social spectrums. It is only an illusion.

Most of what we hear on radio and hear-see on TV is created by consensus, and that consensus does not allow for anyone to be on the air too consistently with criticism of the Establishment. Humorist - critic - comedian Mort Sahl is living proof of that "law."

NETWORK TV put the ban on Mort some time ago. The last time he enjoyed a semi-regular spot on that level was with Jerry Lewis, when the latter had his ill-fated two-hour late-night show on the ABC network for half a season.

Since then Mort has had to be content with a local weekly show on Hollywood Channel 11, which he was fired from two weeks ago, and a two-way radio talk show on Hollywood radio station KLAC, which bounced him last month.

The Metromedia Corp., owners of both those outlets, charged him with insurbordination at the TV station and failing to observe "the tenets of two-way radio" at KLAC.

SIGNIFICANTLY, in neither instance was Sahl's audience rating in question.

"The rating was adequate," said Jim Gates, program director for Channel 11, then admitted that "adequate" in this context meant the rating was on as high a level as it had ever been in the 13 months Sahl's show had been there.

Last December Mort got his notice from Channel 11, but was rehired a few days later, supposedly on the basis of a "new rating." Thousands of letters of protest had reached the station, whipped up to a large extent by Sahl's informing his radio listeners of what had happened.

"When he was fired from KLAC last month, Sahl was told by me not to go on Hollywood Channel 11 and talk about it, but he would not follow those simple instructions," said Gates.

There were other Sahl actions which had burned up management — his persistent discussions of the Kennedy Assassination with Mark Lane (author of "Rush to Judgment") and more recently Sahl's interviews with New Orleans Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison on the same subject.

IT IS TRUE that Sahl is not a great one for adhering to "tenets" or promoting employee-employer relationships. He is an iconoclast with a brilliant incisiveness about the forces which make our world go around. He is accused of causing trouble, when more times than not he is only exposing it.

Sahl certainly can't be any more opinionated than Channel 11's Joe Pyne, who now enjoys syndication of his raucous show in some 40 other cities, but Pyne touches the nerves of only those he invites to argue and bicker with him. He is careful not to run counter to the consensus or ruffle management's feathers.

Former fans of Sahl's, and those include many so-called liberal Hollywood stars and members of the liberal-Democratic faith, try to dismiss Sahl now on the grounds that he has changed. He is paranoid, they insist, and no longer making any sense.

SAHL MAY HAVE become more intensely embittered over the state of the Establishment and the paths it is leading us down, but part of the change is in his former fans, who naively expected him to join them when they became the party in power and joined the Establishment.

The other day Sahl said he was confronted in a store by Rod Serling, the TV writer, who told Sahl that he (Serling) did not appreciate being attacked by Sahl on his show recently. After some fairly heated discussion, Serling turned and walked out, but soon was back and half apologizing to Sahl and telling him to "keep up the good work."

Sahl would like to keep up the good work, but he seems to have run out of radio and TV stations. We lose a lot of good, acerbic people this way. Coming to mind at the moment are Oscar Levant, who is mildewing somewhere; Henry Morgan, who's been relegated by "Consensus TV" to panel shows and a few shorts with Merv Griffin, and now Mort Sahl.

Fry thinly sliced zucchini in olive oil and add an omelet mixture for a good luncheon or supper dish. If you are interested in following an Italian cookery style, you'll cook the zucchini enough to brown it.

Suit Asks W. Va. Liquor Act Be Declared Illegal

CHARLESTON (AP) — A temperance group has asked the Kanawha County Circuit Court to declare unconstitutional the private club liquor act, which allows sale of liquor by the drink.

The West Virginia United Church Alcohol Action Program Inc. (UCAAP) filed suit Wednesday asking that the liquor law passed by the 1967 state legislature be struck down.

State Alcohol Beverage Control Commissioner Clarence Elmore was named defendant in UCAAP's suit.

The suit charges that private clubs are really not private because there have been no standards set saying what constitutes a private club.

UCAAP said there is no way the general public can be excluded from membership in private clubs, so the clubs are not really private.

The Rev. Elwood Fleming, president of UCAAP, said this was the first step in a long legal battle which will probably end up in the State Supreme Court.

Elmore is expected to reply to the suit within 20 days or ask for additional time to prepare a defense.

Corning Glass Works Given Army Contract

MARTINSBURG, W. Va. (AP) — The Army awarded a $1,818,887 contract Wednesday to the Corning Glass Works plant here to manufacture 9,700 ceramic containers.

The Army said the containers were for the tactical fighter plan dispensing muntions system.

Questions U.S. Motives

Baptists Asked To Back Viet 'Peace Statement'

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Almost 15,000 Baptists were asked today "not to be blinded by distorted appeals to false patriotism" and to endorse a peace statement which questions U. S. motives in the Vietnam war.

"In view of the precarious balance of terror which exists in this nuclear age, the waging of peace is a responsibility believers can evade only at great cost," said the report of the Christian Life Commission of the Southern Baptist Convention. The Southern Baptists have 10,952,463 members in 33,949 churches.

The commission said it was "disturbed both by the large weight of world opinion which questions the wisdom of our current policy and by those here at home who doubt the patriotism of anyone who questions our government's official position."

After surviving an attempt Wednesday on the floor of the 110th annual session to abolish the commission for its report, the group placed the document before members for a vote.

Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., an outspoken opponent of U. S. involvement in Vietnam, speaks immediately after the vote but his prepared speech mentioned only the war on poverty.

He urged the 320,000 U. S. church congregations to divide the problems of the "one million so called unemployable people" among them, three per church. Hatfield said then the "problem would disappear."

The vote on the report highlighted a debate between factions in the religious group which favor preaching alone over those who advocate social action.

"Are there no viable alternatives on which negotiations can be based?" the report asked about Vietnam.

"Have we allowed national pride to become an impediment to peace? Has a military-industrial complex developed in our nation, causing economic self-interest to become a factor in decisions relating to war and to the sale of armaments abroad?"

The statement said, "We call upon all the churches not to be blinded by distorted appeals to false patriotism so that they lose sight of the personal tragedy, the great sorrow, and the fantastic cost attached to the present conflict."

The report urged the Southern Baptists to reiterate their "historic commitment to peace" which began with an 1891 petition for "arbitration in the place of war."

Wednesday the convention re-elected the Rev. Dr. H. Franklin Paschall of Nashville, Tenn., as its president and adopted a record $26.7-million budget.

New York State Places Lottery Tickets On Sale

NEW YORK (AP) — Tickets for the New York State lottery went on sale at 12:01 a.m. today and within minutes customers were lined up in one hotel waiting to lay out a dollar for the chance of a $250,000 return.

First to purchase a ticket from the tuxedoed salesman at the Americana Hotel was Patricia Nelson, a Bronx housewife, who said, "I know I'm not going to win, but if I do I'll probably spend it."

Forty-five minutes after the booth opened for business, the hotel had sold 171 of the green and white $1 tickets, including a number to out-of-staters who first received assurances that they were eligible to win.

Robert Goldfarb of St. Thomas, V.I., bought five tickets and gave one to a reporter. "That's good luck—an old lottery custom." he explained. "You give somebody a ticket you've bought."

Most outlets, which include some 4,000 hotels, motels and banks throughout the state, did not plan to start selling tickets until later in the day.

The state hopes to sell 30 million a month to bring in $360 million a year or enough for a $198 million net profit, all of which must be used for education.

At the monthly drawings, there will be 240 prizes totaling $300,000 for each $1 million worth of tickets sold. The awards will range from $100,000 to $150. In addition there will be a once-a-year superprize of $250,000.

All tickets sold in a given month will be put in a drum for a drawing the following month, with the first tentatively scheduled for July 20 in Albany. Winners will be notified by telegram. New York State voters authorized the lottery in a referendum last November making the state the second in the nation, after New Hampshire, to go into the business.

It has been dubbed a "horse-bowl" because winners are determined both by fishbowl-type drawings and the results of a horse race run at a New York track.

If you like maple flavoring, add a little maple extract to a butter frosting for a banana-walnut cake. This combination of flavors really goes together!

Out Of The Air

By HAL HUMPHREY

No Room For Mort

With its two-way radio shows and TV talk shows, the commercial broadcast industry has created an illusion that it is dealing with all shades of opinion in the political and social spectrums. It is only an illusion.

Hal Humphrey

Most of what we hear on radio and hear-see on TV is created by consensus, and that consensus does not allow for anyone to be on the air too consistently with criticism of the Establishment. Humorist - critic - comedian Mort Sahl is living proof of that "law."

-:-

NETWORK TV put the ban on Mort some time ago. The last time he enjoyed a semi-regular spot on that level was with Jerry Lewis, when the latter had his ill-fated two-hour late-night show on the ABC network for half a season.

Since then Mort has had to be content with a local weekly show on Hollywood Channel 11, which he was fired from two weeks ago, and a two-way radio talk show on Hollywood radio station KLAC, which bounced him last month.

The Metromedia Corp., owners of both those outlets, charged him with insurbordination at the TV station and failing to observe "the tenets of two-way radio" at KLAC.

SIGNIFICANTLY, in neither instance was Sahl's audience rating in question.

"The rating was adequate," said Jim Gates, program director for Channel 11, then admitted that "adequate" in this context meant the rating was on as high a level as it had ever been in the 13 months Sahl's show had been there.

Last December Mort got his notice from Channel 11, but was rehired a few days later, supposedly on the basis of a "new rating." Thousands of letters of protest had reached the station, whipped up to a large extent by Sahl's informing his radio listeners of what had happened.

"When he was fired from KLAC last month, Sahl was told by me not to go on Hollywood Channel 11 and talk about it, but he would not follow those simple instructions," said Gates.

There were other Sahl actions which had burned up management — his persistent discussions of the Kennedy Assassination with Mark Lane (author of "Rush to Judgment") and more recently Sahl's interviews with New Orleans Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison on the same subject.

IT IS TRUE that Sahl is not a great one for adhering to "tenets" or promoting employe-employer relationships. He is an iconoclast with a brilliant incisiveness about the forces which make our world go around. He is accused of causing trouble, when more times than not he is only exposing it.

Sahl certainly can't be any more opinionated than Channel 11's Joe Pyne, who now enjoys syndication of his raucous show in some 40 other cities, but Pyne touches the nerves of only those he invites to argue and bicker with him. He is careful not to run counter to the consensus or ruffle management's feathers.

Former fans of Sahl's, and those include many so-called liberal Hollywood stars and members of the liberal-Democratic faith, try to dismiss Sahl now on the grounds that he has changed. He is paranoid, they insist, and no longer making any sense.

SAHL MAY HAVE become more intensely embittered over the state of the Establishment and the paths it is leading us down, but part of the change is in his former fans, who naively expected him to join them when they became the party in power and joined the Establishment.

The other day Sahl said he was confronted in a store by Rod Serling, the TV writer, who told Sahl that he (Serling) did not appreciate being attacked by Sahl on his show recently. Aftter some fairly heated discussion, Serling turned and walked out, but soon was back and half apologizing to Sahl and telling him to "keep up the good work."

Sahl would like to keep up the good work, but he seems to have run out of radio and TV stations. We lose a lot of good, acerbic people this way. Coming to mind at the moment are Oscar Levant, who is mildewing somewhere; Henry Morgan, who's been relegated by "Consensus TV" to panel shows and a few shorts with Merv Griffin, and now Mort Sahl.

Fry thinly sliced zucchini in olive oil and add an omelet mixture for a good luncheon or supper dish. If you are interested in following an Italian cookery style, you'll cook the zucchini enough to brown it.

Suit Asks W. Va. Liquor Act Be Declared Illegal

CHARLESTON (AP) — A temperance group has asked the Kanawha County Circuit Court to declare unconstitutional the private club liquor act, which allows sale of liquor by the drink.

The West Virginia United Church Alcohol Action Program Inc. (UCAAP) filed suit Wednesday asking that the liquor law passed by the 1967 state legislature be struck down.

State Alcohol Beverage Control Commissioner Clarence Elmore was named defendant in UCAAP's suit.

The suit charges that private clubs are really not private because there have been no standards set saying what constitutes a private club.

UCAAP said there is no way the general public can be excluded from membership in private clubs, so the clubs are not really private.

The Rev. Elwood Fleming, president of UCAAP, said this was the first step in a long legal battle which will probably end up in the State Supreme Court.

Elmore is expected to reply to the suit within 20 days or ask for additional time to prepare a defense.

Corning Glass Works Given Army Contract

The Army said the containers were for the tactical fighter plan dispensing muntions system.

1,500 Attend Graduation Of Midland High Seniors

About 1,500 attended the 52nd annual commencement exercises of Midland's Lincoln High School Wednesday night as Dr. Neal V. Musmanno spoke on "Challenges of Education." Dr. Musmanno is assistant commissioner of basic education in the Department of Public Instruction at Harrisburg.

Dr. Musmanno advised the graduates to "remember the sacrifices of your parents." He urged them to desire all that is good and honorable for themselves and their families, reminding that the quest must always be for excellence.

"There is no such thing as a superior or inferior race — only superior or inferior people. It depends entirely on the individual." He urged them to not forget the basic truths of honesty and patriotism, being sure to develop moral character as well as a trained mind.

"Each of you is a candidate for greatness and goodness," Dr. Musmanno stated. "Each one of you is important and has an important role to play in America's future. If America is to survive, every fertile brain and every willing hand is needed," he stressed. "Great men and great women make a great nation."

In concluding, Dr. Musmanno reminded the graduates, "Success is doing the best that is in you. Even if you can't be a tree, be a bush, or at least a blade of grass."

Dr. Musmanno asked Mr. and Mrs. Milan Viakley, parents of the two honor graduates, Ellen Maura Viakley, and Milana Marie Viakley, to stand as the audience applauded.

Speaking on "Until Now," Milana as class salutatorian stated, "Until now we have lived in an idealistic environment, but now we are the ones upon whom responsibility rests."

Ellen, valedictorian, speaking on, "The Now Generation," said "We are impulsive, independent and impatient, but only because of the immediacy of the present." In her concluding remarks she urged her classmates to have pride in the past, conquest in the "now," and hope for the future.

Henry J. Kuzma, high school principal, made senior awards. Diplomas were presented by Maurice J. Newman, president of the Board of Education. The instrumental prelude, processional and fanfare "Pomp and Circumstance," and the fanfare and recessional were played by the band under the direction of Louis Morace. C. Lloyd Deffenbaugh directed the senior choir in "Give Me Your Tired, Your Poor," and the graduating class in singing the Alma Mater.

Piano accompanists were Ellen Viakley and Karen Murphy. Gary Lovejoy, class president, sang "A Perfect Day."

Invocation and benediction were given by the Rev. George H. Bohlender, pastor of the Midland Presbyterian Church.

School Supt. Wilbur P. Dershimer congratulated the graduates on their fine work accomplished during their school years and especially during their senior year.

Man Hurt As Car Slips From Jack

A Calcutta area man escaped serious injury Wednesday afternoon when the jack slipped on a car he was repairing and he became pinned.

Hugh Campbell Jr., 35, of the Old Fredericktown Rd., was treated at City Hospital for contusions of the chest sustained when the front end of the sedan fell on him as the jack slipped.

Campbell's 16-year-old son, Ken Campbell, was home from school after a dental appointment and was able to support the car and assist in his father's release.

Stock Market Takes Biggest Losses Of '67

NEW YORK (AP) — Buffeted by heavy selling, the stock market skidded downward Wednesday. Its averages took their heaviest losses of the year and the largest since last fall.

At the close of trading, the New York Stock Exchange ticker tape trailed by two minutes in reporting transactions from the floor.

Brokers said the selling was touched off by investor worry over the crisis in the Middle East.

Reports that more Soviet warships were expected to sail into the Mediterranean with the possibility of a confrontation between the Soviet ships and the U.S. 6th Fleet were a major factor in the selloff, brokers said.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, suffering its largest loss since last Oct. 3 when it fell 16.26 points, slipped 12.42 points to 852.56. The Associated Press 60-stock average fell 5.3 points to 316.8, its biggest loss since it dropped 5.5 points last Aug. 29.

Marine Unit Donates Book

The Turkaly - Richards Detachment of the Marine Corps League presented a copy of the book, "Home of the Commandants," to the Midland Carnegie Free Library Wednesday afternoon in memory of all deceased area Marines.

The book presented by Commandant Mark Pike was received on behalf of the library by Mrs. Marie Quiring, assistant librarian.

The book is an account of the Washington, D.C., Marine headquarters from 1801 when it was founded by Thomas Jefferson.

Also at the presentation were Sgt. Marvin Wright, Marine recruiting officer at Rochester, and Patrick Cody, Turkaly-Richards adjutant.

The next meeting of the group will be June 8 at 7:30 p.m. at the Midland Borough Building when Sgt. Wright will screen the film, "Marine Corps 1965."

Graduation Rites Slated Friday In Lisbon Stadium

LISBON — Beverly Webber and James Kelm, co-valedictorians of David Anderson High School class of 1967 will address their classmates, parents and friends during the 97th annual Commencement at 7 p.m. Friday in the War Memorial Stadium.

Beverly will speak on "The Decision Is Ours" and James on "Your Image."

Dr. Robert E. Wilson, professor of educational administration at Kent State University, will deliver the Commencement address on the theme "Are You Finished Now?"

The graduation exercise will be held in the high school gymnasium if the weather is bad.

David May, instrumental music instructor, will direct the band in the processional and, during the program, in "Born To Be Free."

Principal George M. Nace Jr. will introduce the 89 seniors, and Dr. Wade A. Bacon, president of the board of education, will present the diplomas.

The Rev. William Ring of St. Jacob's United Church of Christ will give the invocation and benediction.

Lieutenant's Drinking Ritual Ends In His Death

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Army paratrooper drinking ritual ended in the death of a youthful, nondrinking lieutenant, who according to a coroner's report suffocated in his own vomit after swilling the equivalent of 17 ounces of vodka.

Now the Army is urging future close supervision over the use of alcohol in such military rituals, according to a statement today from Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor and Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Army chief of staff. It mentioned no ban.

They called the mid-April death of Lt. Ronald Greer Reeves, 23, accidental, untimely and a personal loss to all who knew him.

But Resor and Johnson said such functions "serve a useful role in developing esprit and a sense of unity within military units." They added the ceremonies "must never become a source of embarrassment to the individual or endanger his well-being."

And Brig. Gen. John L. Throckmorton, commander at Ft. Bragg, N.C., where Reeves was stationed, said Wednesday his office would have to approve before future such functions could be held there.

Reeves, a Clemson University graduate, was carried from a so-called prop blast ritual the night of April 14 at the 82nd Airborne Division's headquarters at Ft. Bragg.

His body was found the following morning in the tourist home where he lived.

Cumberland County Coroner Alth Clark held a five-hour inquest into the affair and ruled Reeves died an accidental death.

No probable cause for criminal charges was found, the report showed. An autopsy performed by an Army pathologist showed Reeves' body contained a blood-alcohol content of 327 milligrams per gram of blood.

At the inquest, officers present at the prop blast testified that no one invited to the function need attend. And the Resor-Johnson statement said: "Under no circumstances should an individual be penalized or ridiculed in any way for declining to participate in such functions."

The Washington Post, which published the story of Reeves' death in today's editions, said attendance at prop blasts is ordered on a document closely resembling an official military order. The Post said those who fail to attend — or refuse to drink a vodka-champagne concoction from a so-called blast cup — hurt their chances for promotion.

The Post said the story of Reeves' death was brought to its attention by relatives of other paratroop officers at Ft. Bragg who fear for their health.

At the ceremony, the Post quoted unidentified witnesses as saying the initiates are required to drink while doing strenuous exercises. Then they face a board of about five officers and drink from the blast cup while the board counts off the time they hold the cups to their mouths.

The Post said witnesses reported Reeves drank from the cup—a 105mm artillery shell—three times, then passed out.

At the inquest into Reeves' death, his uncle, Dr. J. M. Bennett, a psychiatrist, asked: "What would cause this boy, who did not like alcohol, in four months to change his personality so that he would drink enough to kill him? Why are the effects of esprit de corps of the U.S. Army such that cause this?"

The Post quoted Reeves' mother, Mrs. I. G. Reeves of Charleston, S.C., as saying: "What is past is not past. Somebody somewhere is responsible for making a poor judgment. We want to see this doesn't happen to another boy ever again."

EDC Board Sets Plans On Survey

Further plans for a public opinion survey by the Education Development Council of East Liverpool were discussed at a meeting of the executive board Wednesday night with Jackman Vodrey of Park Blvd., president.

A discussion of the survey with Prof. Paul Pfeiffer of Kent State University was reported by Robert Harris and John Scales of the public relations committee.

The executive board authorized Harris and Scales to confer with school administration officials about possible ways the EDC could aid in bringing education matters to better public understanding.

Ward Tappan, chairman of the athletics committee, reported on talks with the Athletic Association and board of education members.

Discussion was held on other committee projects.

Hints from Heloise

— By Heloise Cruse —

Dear Ladies: This is especially for you since it seems like men just don't do it right when it comes to pulling grass and weeds from our flower beds and gardens. And, besides, it's us gals who do most of the weeding anyway, eh?

Most men just pull the top of the weed off . . . ugh. , .and we know it's going to grow right back again as long as that old root is there.

Sometimes you can use weed killer, but in your flower bed or garden it may harm the plants.

The problem is we must get to the root itself.

The easiest way I know is to remove the nozzle from your garden hose and soak that bed thoroughly. Literally flood it.

Turn off the water and wait about an hour. Along about this time you will see that all the water has gone right into the ground. This is a good start to getting to the root of all our troubles.

Flood it again until water is standing in your flower bed and the earth is soaked completely.

Remove your shoes (this job should be done barefoot), or at least wear some old shoes you don't care about if you can't stand to have your feet in mud.

Attach the nozzle to your garden hose again and turn the faucet on full blast. We're going to use this for an automatic digger! So step back into that flower bed, gals.

Instead of yanking up those weeds and breaking off the roots, try to find the main stem of the plant. When you do, direct the strong stream of water down where the root is.

The packed hard mud will dissolve and float away leaving a hole.

All you have to do is shake that little old main stem and you will feel it loosen. Just pull it out and your troubles will all be ended.

I usually go six inches deep which only takes seconds with our homemade "water digger." The soil will float back in and fill up the hole.

I have done this where I have sogged up to my ankles and gotten pretty muddy, but it was years before another weed ever came up in that flower bed.

And, gals, the best time to do this is on weekends when your husband is home. He can see how hard you work. Maybe he'll get the message . . . at least let's hope so!

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: I make small jars of jellies for gifts for my friends.

When they need to be sealed with paraffin I never bother melting the wax in a pan first.

After all, the jelly is boiling hot when I pour it into the jars. I just use my potato peeler and shave off enough paraffin to seal the jars. I put these very thin shavings on top of the very hot jelly and watch them melt and seal perfectly.

No waxy pan to clean, or can to throw away.

S.W.

DEAR HELOISE: I use my Lazy Susan when icing cakes.

It is so handy, as it not only raises the cake off the table but can be turned around as I ice it.

This is so quick and easy for me. Try it!

MRS. AUGUST WITT.

LETTER OF THOUGHT

DEAR HELOISE: Sometimes we are all tired or scared.

Who isn't?

Fear grips us all at one time or another.

Like you say, "Forget it, clean closets, etc."

The fear WILL PASS — eventually everything does!

P.

Hints from Heloise

— By Heloise Cruse —

Dear Ladies: This is especially for you since it seems like men just don't do it right when it comes to pulling grass and weeds from our flower beds and gardens. And, besides, it's us gals who do most of the weeding anyway, eh?

Most men just pull the top of the weed off . . . ugh. , .and we know it's going to grow right back again as long as that old root is there.

Sometimes you can use weed killer, but in your flower bed or garden it may harm the plants.

The problem is we must get to the root itself.

The easiest way I know is to remove the nozzle from your garden hose and soak that bed thoroughly. Literally flood it.

Turn off the water and wait about an hour. Along about this time you will see that all the water has gone right into the ground. This is a good start to getting to the root of all our troubles.

Flood it again until water is standing in your flower bed and the earth is soaked completely.

Remove your shoes (this job should be done barefoot), or at least wear some old shoes you don't care about if you can't stand to have your feet in mud.

Attach the nozzle to your garden hose again and turn the faucet on full blast. We're going to use this for an automatic digger! So step back into that flower bed, gals.

Instead of yanking up those weeds and breaking off the roots, try to find the main stem of the plant. When you do, direct the strong stream of water down where the root is.

The packed hard mud will dissolve and float away leaving a hole.

All you have to do is shake that little old main stem and you will feel it loosen. Just pull it out and your troubles will all be ended.

I usually go six inches deep which only takes seconds with our homemade "water digger." The soil will float back in and fill up the hole.

I have done this where I have sogged up to my ankles and gotten pretty muddy, but it was years before another weed ever came up in that flower bed.

And, gals, the best time to do this is on weekends when your husband is home. He can see how hard you work. Maybe he'll get the message . . . at least let's hope so!

HELOISE.

DEAR HELOISE: I make small jars of jellies for gifts for my friends.

When they need to be sealed with paraffin I never bother melting the wax in a pan first.

After all, the jelly is boiling hot when I pour it into the jars. I just use my potato peeler and shave off enough paraffin to seal the jars. I put these very thin shavings on top of the very hot jelly and watch them melt and seal perfectly.

No waxy pan to clean, or can to throw away.

DEAR HELOISE: I use my Lazy Susan when icing cakes.

It is so handy, as it not only raises the cake off the table but can be turned around as I ice it.

This is so quick and easy for me. Try it!

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: Now that you have made it clear that the wife of a soldier in Vietnam is not obligated to share her husband's letters with her mother-in-law, please settle another problem.

My brother will be returning from Vietnam within 40 days. We live in a large city which is a debarkation point. This means he will be flying direct.

His wife has asked me to instruct my parents not to go to the airport to meet him. She wants to meet him with the children and asks that no one else be present to witness the highly charged emotional experience.

She says they will "go home as a family" for a few hours, and call when they are ready for "guests."

I hate to give my parents this message. I'm afraid they will be terribly hurt. I think my sister-in-law is being selfish. Do you agree? — DENVER.

-:-

Dear Denver: Your sister-in-law sounds adorable. I hope you will refuse to be a party to her selfishness. If she wants to behave like a spoiled brat tell her to do her own dirty work.

Wrecking Crew

Dear Ann: The letter from the Bronxville female presented a fairly solid case for "The Other Woman." She insisted that "the other woman" is not always a tramp and listed among her dazzling credentials a master's degree from Columbia University and a position which pays her $200 a week.

One of her principal virtues, she boasted, was a keen appreciation for life and the good things it has to offer. This, she said, is what attracted the man whose wife's philosophy was "life is a dung heap."

I'd like to inquire why a woman with so much on the ball would settle for a married man. Surely a bright, attractive, successful, unattached female with a keen appreciation for life would be a highly desirable candidate for marriage.

Why is she content with a back-alley relationship. She accused her playmate's wife of having a screw loose. Wouldn't you say she has a similar problem? — SPY GLASS.

Dear Spy: I would, indeed. Women who become involved with married men are frequently self-destructive, martyr types. Any gal who finds herself in this spot more than once should face up to this possibility.

This Rite Is Wrong

Dear Ann: There is a fad going around school. One student plays like he is the judge and he "marries" a couple who like each other a lot.

The couple that pretends they are getting married invites some of their best friends to the "ceremony" and then the couple kisses at the end and everyone congratulates them.

Most of these "marriages" take place right after school, by the locker, or during lunch, in a corner of the lunchroom.

A guy who sits next to me in many of my classes has asked me if I'd like to marry him in one of these play ceremonies. It's just fun and doesn't mean anything, but I don't know if I want to go that far even for a joke. What do you think? — UNWED AT 13.

-:-

Dear Unwed: You're in a tough spot — too old to play house for fun and too young to get married for real. My advice is to pass up the wedding ceremony and let the "groom" buy you an ice cream cone instead.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Insurance Union Eyes Metropolitan Life Co.

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Insurance Workers International Union hopes to organize 6,000 agents employed by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. within a year.

William S. Gillen, union president, told delegates at the union's convention here Wednesday that the IWIU opportunity to organize employes of the nation's second largest insurance company came when the National Labor Relations Board broke a five-year deadlock over bargaining relationships.

River Traffic Moves

CINCINNATI (AP — Traffic was moving through the Markland Dam on the Ohio River today, signaling the end of days of work to free the dam of seven sunken barges.

Court-Martial Nearing End Of Testimony

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The court-martial of Army Capt. Howard B. Levy neared the end of testimony today after doctors told a military tribunal that medical ethics would not prevent them from training Green Beret medics.

Levy, 30, a Brooklyn, N.Y., dermatologist, is charged with disobeying an order to train Special Forces aid men in diagnosing and treating skin diseases and with promoting disloyalty by statements opposing United States involvement in Vietnam.

The maximum penalty upon conviction is 11 years in prison.

Another Army dermatologist, Maj. Billy E. Jones, stationed at Ft. Gordon, Ga., testified Wednesday that he had no ethical objections to training the medics even though they are combat soldiers and use their skills for political purposes.

When asked if he would abandon a patient on the orders of a superior officer, Jones replied: "This would depend entirely upon the circumstance. I can't answer that yes or no."

Levy's lawyers have sought to prove that a physician's professional and moral code takes precedence over military orders, and that it was on this basis that Levy refused to continue training the Green Berets last October. His case is without military precedent.

A Columbia surgeon, Dr. Edward Kimbrough, told the 10-member court he spent two months in Vietnam this year as a volunteer at a civilian hospital and considered the work of Special Forces medics "very good." Kimbrough said he would have no objection to training the medics although they were combat soldiers.

On cross examination, Kimbrough said that if a physician believed the medics would not use their skills in an ethical way, "it would require deep ethical consideration" before agreeing to train them.

Sgt. 1.C. George B. Curry, assigned to the staff at Ft. Jackson Army Hospital, where Levy works, testified that he told an investigator last year that Levy's medical license in New York should be revoked "because I think he is a disgrace to America."

Curry denied that he was "out to get Levy."

The sergeant said a printed explanation of the Green Beret training program was distributed to Ft. Jackson doctors in June 1966, contrary to defense contentions that Levy was not informed about the program initially. He trained the medics for about four months, and then refused to continue.

1,100 Painters Strike

PITTSBURGH (AP) — About 1,100 painters struck today in Allegheny County.

The strike began at midnight after Local 6 of the Painters Union rejected an offer by the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Painting and Decorating Contractors.

A union spokesman said the strike affects all residential, commercial and industrial painting jobs in the county involving union labor.

Another union, the Carpenters District Council, which has 5,000 members, was to resume negotiations with the Master Builders Association today.

My brother will be returning from Vietnam within 40 days. We live in a large city which is a debarkation point. This means he will be flying direct.

His wife has asked me to instruct my parents not to go to the airport to meet him. She wants to meet him with the children and asks that no one else be present to witness the highly charged emotional experience.

She says they will "go home as a family" for a few hours, and call when they are ready for "guests."

I hate to give my parents this message. I'm afraid they will be terribly hurt. I think my sister-in-law is being selfish. Do you agree? — DENVER.

-:-

Dear Denver: Your sister-in-law sounds adorable. I hope you will refuse to be a party to her selfishness. If she wants to behave like a spoiled brat tell her to do her own dirty work.

Wrecking Crew

Dear Ann: The letter from the Bronxville female presented a fairly solid case for "The Other Woman." She insisted that "the other woman" is not always a tramp and listed among her dazzling credentials a master's degree from Columbia University and a position which pays her $200 a week.

One of her principal virtues, she boasted, was a keen appreciation for life and the good things it has to offer. This, she said, is what attracted the man whose wife's philosophy was "life is a dung heap."

I'd like to inquire why a woman with so much on the ball would settle for a married man. Surely a bright, attractive, successful, unattached female with a keen appreciation for life would be a highly desirable candidate for marriage.

Why is she content with a back-alley relationship. She accused her playmate's wife of having a screw loose. Wouldn't you say she has a similar problem? — SPY GLASS.

Dear Spy: I would, indeed. Women who become involved with married men are frequently self-destructive, martyr types. Any gal who finds herself in this spot more than once should face up to this possibility.

This Rite Is Wrong

Dear Ann: There is a fad going around school. One student plays like he is the judge and he "marries" a couple who like each other a lot.

The couple that pretends they are getting married invites some of their best friends to the "ceremony" and then the couple kisses at the end and everyone congratulates them.

Most of these "marriages" take place right after school, by the locker, or during lunch, in a corner of the lunchroom.

A guy who sits next to me in many of my classes has asked me if I'd like to marry him in one of these play ceremonies. It's just fun and doesn't mean anything, but I don't know if I want to go that far even for a joke. What do you think? — UNWED AT 13.

-:-

Dear Unwed: You're in a tough spot — too old to play house for fun and too young to get married for real. My advice is to pass up the wedding ceremony and let the "groom" buy you an ice cream cone instead.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Court-Martial Nearing End Of Testimony

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The court-martial of Army Capt. Howard B. Levy neared the end of testimony today after doctors told a military tribunal that medical ethics would not prevent them from training Green Beret medics.

Levy, 30, a Brooklyn, N.Y., dermatologist, is charged with disobeying an order to train Special Forces aid men in diagnosing and treating skin diseases and with promoting disloyalty by statements opposing United States involvement in Vietnam.

The maximum penalty upon conviction is 11 years in prison.

Another Army dermatologist, Maj. Billy E. Jones, stationed at Ft. Gordon, Ga., testified Wednesday that he had no ethical objections to training the medics even though they are combat soldiers and use their skills for political purposes.

When asked if he would abandon a patient on the orders of a superior officer, Jones replied: "This would depend entirely upon the circumstance. I can't answer that yes or no."

Levy's lawyers have sought to prove that a physician's professional and moral code takes precedence over military orders, and that it was on this basis that Levy refused to continue training the Green Berets last October. His case is without military precedent.

A Columbia surgeon, Dr. Edward Kimbrough, told the 10-member court he spent two months in Vietnam this year as a volunteer at a civilian hospital and considered the work of Special Forces medics "very good." Kimbrough said he would have no objection to training the medics although they were combat soldiers.

On cross examination, Kimbrough said that if a physician believed the medics would not use their skills in an ethical way, "it would require deep ethical consideration" before agreeing to train them.

Sgt. 1.C. George B. Curry, assigned to the staff at Ft. Jackson Army Hospital, where Levy works, testified that he told an investigator last year that Levy's medical license in New York should be revoked "because I think he is a disgrace to America."

Curry denied that he was "out to get Levy."

The sergeant said a printed explanation of the Green Beret training program was distributed to Ft. Jackson doctors in June 1966, contrary to defense contentions that Levy was not informed about the program initially. He trained the medics for about four months, and then refused to continue.

Okay Urged On Banking Law Change

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP — A much - amended bill to revise Ohio's banking laws has been recommended for passage by a Senate committee which heard about 14 weeks of testimony and recommendations.

The omnibus bill by Sen. Ralph S. Regula R-29 Navarre, Stark, and others would increase certain powers of state-chartered banks. It is intended to put them in a better competitive position with national banks.

It also would permit, after January 1968, the voting by banks of shares held in trust--an established practice that is challenged in a current Cleveland court case.

The bill made no change in laws covering the cumulative voting of shares by stockholders, practiced by some institutions but not permitted by others.

The committee recommended passage Wednesday.

Regula said no provisions were included covering voting of trust shares because of possible influence on the Cleveland litigation. The suit by the Cleveland Trust Co. against industrialist Cyrus Eaton seeks interpretation of present laws on the acquiring and voting of trust shares.

Otherwise, the measure provides for the superintendent of banks to be appointed by the director of commerce and for the superintendent to serve as assistant commerce director.

The amount which a bank would be permitted to invest in real estate and buildings which it occupies would be increased to 100 per cent of capital or, with the superintendent's approval, 50 per cent of capital and surplus.

State banks would be authorized to invest in direct leasing of personal property, a power now enjoyed by national banks. However, such investments on a single item would be a minimum of $10,000 so that banks could not engage in the car leasing business.

commitment to Israeli security and territorial integrity."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who is against stepping up the Vietnam conflict, suggested that if the United Nations fails to produce any satisfactory settlement the Big Four nations be called upon to act.

Mansfield said he thinks the United States, Great Britain, France and the Soviet Union should be able to work out free passage of ships in the Gulf of Aqaba by an agreement similar to the 1936 accord under which shipping flows through the Bosporus and the Dardenelles.

Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen, agreeing that Israel must be saved, skirted any commitments until Johnson decides how to act in the crisis. Dirksen, who has supported the President's Vietnam actions, said he assumes Johnson will ask and get congressional backing for any decision he makes.

Youth Is Hurt As Two Cars Ram Head-On

A Beloit area youth was injured when the car in which he was a passenger was struck head-on by another Wednesday an Route 62, two miles west of Route 534, according to the Highway Patrol at Lisbon.

The mishap in the Salem area was timed at 11:15 a. m. and involved cars operated by Joseph T. Wilson, 18, of Salem R.D. 1 and Dewayne R. Vizzuso, 18, of Homeworth R. D. 1.

Officers said Vizzuso was attempting a left turn and struck Wilson head-on. Vizzuso was cited for failure to yield the right-of-way.

Wilson complained of injuries, while his passenger, John Berlin, 18, of Beloit R. D. 2, was treated at Alliance City Hospital.

Louis R. Joy, 22, of Wellsville R. D. 1 escaped injury when his 1965 pickup truck overturned at 12:05 a. m. today on Route 164, three and seven-tenths miles north of Lisbon.

He lost control and went off the left side of the road, officers said. He was not cited.

sanctions against Ojukwu's regime.

British and Italian authorities also began making arrangements to withdraw 3,000 Britons and 300 Italians who live in the 30,099-square-mile eastern territory.

The 27,300-ton British aircraft carrier Albion broke off from exercises near the Scottish coast and sailed for an "unknown desination," the British Defense ministry disclosed. There was speculation in London that it might be bound for Nigeria, if not for the Middle East.

Diplomtas said fighting appeared imminent as Lt. Col. Yakubu Gowon, head of the central government, began mobilizing Nigeria's armed forces.

The navy ordered officers and men on leave to report for duty and military reservists and ex-servicemen were ordered to register. Registration started in Lagos Wednesday with about 50 former servicemen heading up the line.

Gowon has been massing troops for several months in the northern region adjoining Ojukwu's area. The federal government chief has also proclaimed an embargo against eastern ports, but there has been no word of any interference with shipping, including the million tons of crude oil exported each month from the eastern port of Bonny.

Gowon has cut off eastern communications with the outside world. All of the east's international cable and radiotelephone services were routed through Lagos, and the central government pulled the plugs. Eastern bank accounts in Lagos and other cities under federal control were frozen and transfer of money to the east was banned.

Gowon notified U.N. members his government would consider recognition of Biafra an unfriendly act.

Ojukwu proclaimed independence Tuesday after disputing for months with Gowon over Nigeria's form of government. Ojukwu wanted a loose confederation in which the five regions of the former British colony would be virtually autonomous. Gowon insisted on a close confederation ruled from Lagos.

The eastern region produces most of the oil which has become a major contributor to Nigeria's economy. Oil exports last year totaled $257.6 million, and about two-thirds came from the east.

The fewer and smaller the holes in Swiss cheese, the better the cheese. According to cheese experts, small holes show that fermentation has been carefully controlled.

26 Generals Petition Congress

Study Urged On Proposal To Abolish Guard Units

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty-six National Guard generals have petitioned Congress to scrutinize critically a proposal to abolish 15 Guard divisions. They contend such a move would cut down the nation's combat effectiveness "and dangerously impair the military prestige of our country in this period of international crisis."

This was disclosed as the Pentagon moved closer today to announcing its latest streamlining plan—which is virtually certain to kick up a storm in the states and on Capitol Hill.

Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor and Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Army chief of staff, gave House Armed Services Committee members a secret briefing on the proposal Wednesday.

Signing the petition, drawn up at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., were commanders of 21 of the Guard's 23 divisions, plus five other Guard generals. The only division commanders unrepresented were those of the 50th Armored Division of New Jersey and the 30th Infantry Division of North Carolina. Both these divisions are expected to survive.

The plan reportedly involves an over-all reduction of about 1,000 company-size National Guard units and more than 300 in the Army Reserve.

Among the Reserve units due to be dropped are its last four infantry brigades.

The net effect of the reorganization would be to group all combat and combat support units of the Army's backup forces in the Guard and all the miscellaneous service units in the Reserve.

Men in disbanded units would be invited to join surviving units as part of the program of building their strength close to combat level.

The Guard would end up with new strength of 400,000 men—about 16,000 below present levels. The Reserve would drop to 240,000—some 14,000 under current levels.

The Guard would include a first-line backup force of three divisions and 18 independent brigades.

In their petition, the Guard generals noted that in recent years the Pentagon has deactivated 14 divisions, four in the Guard and 10 in the Reserve.

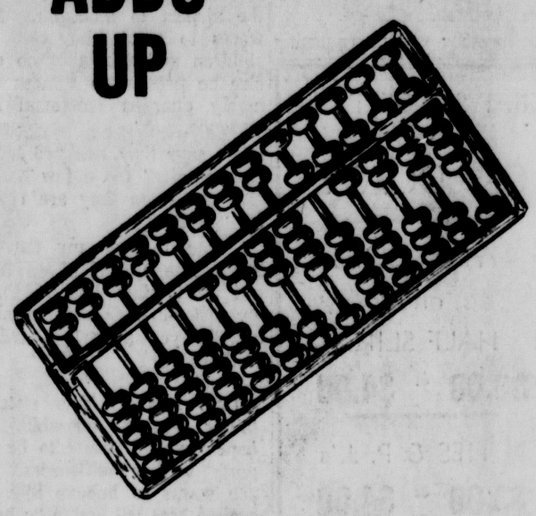

"Continued reduction in the number of major units would result in further turbulence and consequent impairment of combat effectiveness," the petition said.

"Such attritive action would limit the flexibility of our total response...it would also restrict seriously our capability to respond to domestic security requirements."

The 15 Guard divisions to be eliminated are manned at about 50 per cent of their combat strength.

Okay Urged On Banking Law Change

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP — A much - amended bill to revise Ohio's banking laws has been recommended for passage by a Senate committee which heard about 14 weeks of testimony and recommendations.

The omnibus bill by Sen. Ralph S. Regula R-29 Navarre, Stark, and others would increase certain powers of state-chartered banks. It is intended to put them in a better competitive position with national banks.

It also would permit, after January 1968, the voting by banks of shares held in trust--an established practice that is challenged in a current Cleveland court case.

The bill made no change in laws covering the cumulative voting of shares by stockholders, practiced by some institutions but not permitted by others.

The committee recommended passage Wednesday.

Regula said no provisions were included covering voting of trust shares because of possible influence on the Cleveland litigation. The suit by the Cleveland Trust Co. against industrialist Cyrus Eaton seeks interpretation of present laws on the acquiring and voting of trust shares.

Otherwise, the measure provides for the superintendent of banks to be appointed by the director of commerce and for the superintendent to serve as assistant commerce director.

The amount which a bank would be permitted to invest in real estate and buildings which it occupies would be increased to 100 per cent of capital or, with the superintendent's approval, 50 per cent of capital and surplus.

State banks would be authorized to invest in direct leasing of personal property, a power now enjoyed by national banks. However, such investments on a single item would be a minimum of $10,000 so that banks could not engage in the car leasing business.

Youth Is Hurt As Two Cars Ram Head-On

A Beloit area youth was injured when the car in which he was a passenger was struck head-on by another Wednesday an Route 62, two miles west of Route 534, according to the Highway Patrol at Lisbon.

The mishap in the Salem area was timed at 11:15 a. m. and involved cars operated by Joseph T. Wilson, 18, of Salem R.D. 1 and Dewayne R. Vizzuso, 18, of Homeworth R. D. 1.

Officers said Vizzuso was attempting a left turn and struck Wilson head-on. Vizzuso was cited for failure to yield the right-of-way.

Wilson complained of injuries, while his passenger, John Berlin, 18, of Beloit R. D. 2, was treated at Alliance City Hospital.

Louis R. Joy, 22, of Wellsville R. D. 1 escaped injury when his 1965 pickup truck overturned at 12:05 a. m. today on Route 164, three and seven-tenths miles north of Lisbon.

He lost control and went off the left side of the road, officers said. He was not cited.

sanctions against Ojukwu's regime.

British and Italian authorities also began making arrangements to withdraw 3,000 Britons and 300 Italians who live in the 30,099-square-mile eastern territory.

The 27,300-ton British aircraft carrier Albion broke off from exercises near the Scottish coast and sailed for an "unknown desination," the British Defense ministry disclosed. There was speculation in London that it might be bound for Nigeria, if not for the Middle East.

Diplomtas said fighting appeared imminent as Lt. Col. Yakubu Gowon, head of the central government, began mobilizing Nigeria's armed forces.

The navy ordered officers and men on leave to report for duty and military reservists and ex-servicemen were ordered to register. Registration started in Lagos Wednesday with about 50 former servicemen heading up the line.

Gowon has been massing troops for several months in the northern region adjoining Ojukwu's area. The federal government chief has also proclaimed an embargo against eastern ports, but there has been no word of any interference with shipping, including the million tons of crude oil exported each month from the eastern port of Bonny.

Gowon has cut off eastern communications with the outside world. All of the east's international cable and radiotelephone services were routed through Lagos, and the central government pulled the plugs. Eastern bank accounts in Lagos and other cities under federal control were frozen and transfer of money to the east was banned.

Gowon notified U.N. members his government would consider recognition of Biafra an unfriendly act.

Ojukwu proclaimed independence Tuesday after disputing for months with Gowon over Nigeria's form of government. Ojukwu wanted a loose confederation in which the five regions of the former British colony would be virtually autonomous. Gowon insisted on a close confederation ruled from Lagos.

The eastern region produces most of the oil which has become a major contributor to Nigeria's economy. Oil exports last year totaled $257.6 million, and about two-thirds came from the east.

commitment to Israeli security and territorial integrity."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, who is against stepping up the Vietnam conflict, suggested that if the United Nations fails to produce any satisfactory settlement the Big Four nations be called upon to act.

Mansfield said he thinks the United States, Great Britain, France and the Soviet Union should be able to work out free passage of ships in the Gulf of Aqaba by an agreement similar to the 1936 accord under which shipping flows through the Bosporus and the Dardenelles.

Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen, agreeing that Israel must be saved, skirted any commitments until Johnson decides how to act in the crisis. Dirksen, who has supported the President's Vietnam actions, said he assumes Johnson will ask and get congressional backing for any decision he makes.

26 Generals Petition Congress

Study Urged On Proposal To Abolish Guard Units

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twenty-six National Guard generals have petitioned Congress to scrutinize critically a proposal to abolish 15 Guard divisions. They contend such a move would cut down the nation's combat effectiveness "and dangerously impair the military prestige of our country in this period of international crisis."

This was disclosed as the Pentagon moved closer today to announcing its latest streamlining plan—which is virtually certain to kick up a storm in the states and on Capitol Hill.

Secretary of the Army Stanley R. Resor and Gen. Harold K. Johnson, Army chief of staff, gave House Armed Services Committee members a secret briefing on the proposal Wednesday.

Signing the petition, drawn up at Ft. Leavenworth, Kan., were commanders of 21 of the Guard's 23 divisions, plus five other Guard generals. The only division commanders unrepresented were those of the 50th Armored Division of New Jersey and the 30th Infantry Division of North Carolina. Both these divisions are expected to survive.

The plan reportedly involves an over-all reduction of about 1,000 company-size National Guard units and more than 300 in the Army Reserve.

Among the Reserve units due to be dropped are its last four infantry brigades.

The net effect of the reorganization would be to group all combat and combat support units of the Army's backup forces in the Guard and all the miscellaneous service units in the Reserve.

Men in disbanded units would be invited to join surviving units as part of the program of building their strength close to combat level.

The Guard would end up with new strength of 400,000 men—about 16,000 below present levels. The Reserve would drop to 240,000—some 14,000 under current levels.

The Guard would include a first-line backup force of three divisions and 18 independent brigades.

In their petition, the Guard generals noted that in recent years the Pentagon has deactivated 14 divisions, four in the Guard and 10 in the Reserve.

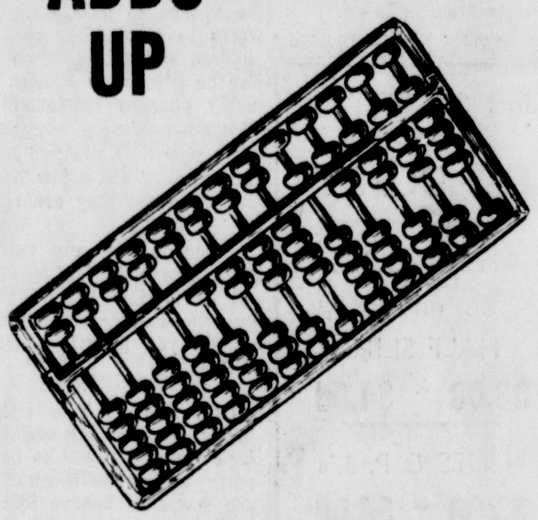

"Continued reduction in the number of major units would result in further turbulence and consequent impairment of combat effectiveness," the petition said.

"Such attritive action would limit the flexibility of our total response. . .it would also restrict seriously our capability to respond to domestic security requirements."

The 15 Guard divisions to be eliminated are manned at about 50 per cent of their combat strength.

Music Figure Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — William "Billy" Strayhorn, 51, one of the nation's most noted composers and arrangers of jazz, died Wednesday of cancer. Strayhorn 28 years ago knocked on the backstage door of a Pittsburgh theater where Duke Ellington was appearing and handed him the song "Something to Live For." Foyt Takes 500; Jones' Car Quits 10 Miles From Home

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Use Of Turbine Engine Looms Big?

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Parnelli Jones' "whispering wind" turbine car died away and lost to A. J. Foyt Jr.'s conventional rear-engine Coyote Ford in Wednesday's 500-mile auto race.

But controversy over use of an aircraft engine for the first time in the 56-year-old race had not quieted today.

Henry Banks, director of competition for the U. S. Auto Club and himself a former national champion, said the question of running a turbine against piston engines "definitely will be brought up" at a June 5 meeting of the USAC rules committee."

"It's our job to keep the competition even; arranging formulas for that purpose is a foremost consideration," Banks said.

"There were no ground rules for a turbine and we think we came up with a pretty good formula for one. All you can do for a new development is run it once and then reconsider."

Foyt picked up a record first place check for $171,227 at the Victory Dinner Wednesday night. Jones, who slipped to sixth in the wreck-halted race, got $48,392 including $27,000 in lap prizes for leading 171 of the 200 laps.

Foyt's record average was 151.207 m.p.h. against Jim Clark's 1965 mark of 150.686. Jones had one lap at 164.926, another record.

Second place Al Unser, Albuquerque, N.M., won $69,977 and third place Joe Leonard, Foyt's teammate, got $43,527. The total purse of $727,346.98 broke a record of $691,808.90 set last year.

The race, run in sections of 45 and 455 miles because of a Tuesday interruption by rain, proved that the STP-Pratt & Whitney turbine could go off and hide from any piston engine on the track whenever Jones hit the throttle.

A $6 ball bearing finally failed in the gear box with less than 10 miles to go and the dogged Foyt won as he had in 1961 when leader Eddie Sachs stopped to change a tire with only 2 ½ miles to go.

Jones said he was running slowly and smoothly when the bearing went out. "I was going into the third," he said. "It felt just like pulling the car out of gear."

Foyt won the hard way in 1964 and joins the only other three-time winners, Louis Meyer, Wilbur Shaw and Mauri Rose.

Foyt said he might be in a turbine car himself next year if the rules aren't changed to bar it. He said he simply couldn't catch it when Jones was on the track.

International racer Dan Gurney also tried gallantly but was washed out by a series of mechanical problems.

Foyt and Gurney pushed Jones as hard as they could and the 51st 500 literally was a three-car race.

Foyt led twice before the finish as the indirect result of a rule for two compulsory pit stops for fuel. Jones made both of his stops before Foyt, who then led from the 80th through the 83rd lap and from the 131st through the 149th.

Each time Foyt made his own pit stop, Jones swished ahead easily and was in full command.

Whatever the merits of their equipment, Jones and Foyt upheld their reputations as two of the world's greatest drivers.

On the 51st lap, southern stock car racer Lee Roy Yarbrough spun in front of Jones. Jones did a controlled spin, drove through the infield grass and went right on racing. This let Gurney lead the next two laps but the turbine soon was back in control.

The moment of truth for Foyt came as he rounded the last turn on his final lap. A drive shaft broke in Bobby Grim's car, tearing off a wheel, on the mainstretch. Cars of Carl Williams and Chuck Hulse also crashed and other cars were sliding in all directions.

Foyt snaked through the mess on the track and took the checkered flag just before Chief Steward Harlan Fengler ordered the

"I just try to make them hit my pitch," says Rich Nye, who did quite a job of hitting theirs.

The Chicago Cub rookie lefthander beat the National League-leading Cincinnati Reds 6-5 Wednesday night, although he needed relief help in the ninth inning.

But Nye didn't need help in the batter's box, a place where pitchers usually feel anything but at ease. He drove in a run and scored twice on two singles, a double and a walk.

Houston whipped the New York Mets 6-1, Philadelphia downed Los Angeles 6-0 in 11 innings and San Francisco trounced Pittsburgh 15-4 in other National League action. The Atlanta at St. Louis game was rained out.

Nye doubled in the third and scored on Glenn Beckert's single, singled home a run in the sixth and walked and scored in the Cubs' three-run eighth. His other hit was a bunt single in the fifth.

Beckert doubled home Nye and Ron Santo singled in the other two runs in the eighth as the Cubs took a 6-2 lead.

Then the Reds, who had been held to three hits by Nye in seven innings, finally got to the rookie in the eighth when they scored three times on a walk, single, two doubles and a fielder's choice. Nye finished the inning, and then Cal Koonce got the Reds out in the ninth.

Houston exploded for six runs in the sixth inning against the Mets, moving into ninth place by 13 percentage points over New York.

Three of the Astros' runs came in on singles by Jim Wynn and Bob Aspromonte and Rusty Staub's double. Ron Brand singled in two more and the sixth scored on an error by shortstop Bud Harrelson.

Dave Giusti allowed the Mets only four hits, one of them a homer by Bob Johnson, in gaining his second victory after five straight losses. He struck out eight and walked one.

The Phillies, held scoreless by Don Drysdale on six hits through 10 innings, exploded in the 11th, with Bill White driving in the first run with his first hit of the season, a single. White has been sidelined most of the season with a heel injury. He had gone 0 for 18.

After the second run scored Phil Regan replaced Drysdale, but he couldn't get the final out until four more runs had crossed the plate to put the game out of reach.

Rick Wise and Dick Hall, who took over starting the 10th, scattered eight Los Angeles hits.

San Francisco got a three-run homer from Jesus Alou in the fourth and a two-run shot by Ollie Brown an inning later in clobbering Pittsburgh and Handing Bob Veale his first loss after six victories. The Giants wrapped it up in the seventh when they scored six runs, only one of which was earned.

Gene Alley and Jose Pagan hit consecutive homers for the Pirates in the fourth.

WASHINGTON'S MIKE EPSTEIN, newly acquired from the Baltimore Orioles, takes a healthy cut at the ball during his first batting practice as a Senator Wednesday. White Sox Edge Orioles; Tribe Rips Tigers 9-0

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The pressure is getting to Carl Yastrzemski . . . and it's the best feeling he's had in seven years.

"Every time at bat means something now," Yastremski said Wednesday night after clouting his ninth and 10th home runs to help the Boston Red Sox edge Minnesota 3-2 for their fourth straight victory.

"We're playing tight ball games and you've got to be bearing down all the time," the slugging outfielder added as the Red Sox savored the heady atmosphere of third place in the American League race.

Yastrzemski has won one AL batting championship and barely missed another since joining Boston in 1961. But he has never played on a pennant contender. This year, Yaz is off to his best start ever . . . and the Red Sox are keeping pace for a change.

Wednesday night's victory over the Twins left them 4½ games out of first place.

The Chicago White Sox trimmed Detroit's league lead to one-half game, nipping Baltimore 3-2 in 11 innings while Cleveland was drubbing the Tigers 9-0 behind the six-hit, 13-strikeout pitching of Luis Tiant. New York blanked Kansas City 3-0 and Washington trimmed California 6-3 in other AL games.

Yastrzemski's leadoff homers in the fourth and seventh innings staked right-hander Darrell Brandon to a 2-0 lead and the Red Sox added another run in the seventh on a suicide squeeze bunt by Mike Ryan.

That run turned out to be the winner when the Twins chased Brandon with a two-run burst in the eighth before reliever John Wyatt stemmed the tide.

The Red Sox are 22-20 for the season, compared to 16-26 at the same point last year, when they finished ninth. "I said before the season that this team would win more games than it loses, and I still believe that," said Manager Dick Williams.

Ron Hansen's run-scoring single in the 11th lifted the White Sox past Baltimore after Boog Powell's sacrifice fly pulled the Orioles even in the ninth.

Ken Berry, whose bunt single in the sixth delivered Chicago's second run, led off the 11th with a single, took second on a sacrifice bunt and scored the tie-breaking run on Hansen's hit.

Tiant breezed to his third victory against one setback and knocked in two runs with a sixth inning single. Leon Wagner and Larry Brown each drove in three runs for the Indians, who pounded six Detroit pitchers for 16 hits.

Rookies Steve Whitaker and Thad Tillotson led the Yankees to their shutout victory, with a ninth inning assist from relief specialist Dooley Womack. Whitaker crashed a two-run homer and right-hander Tillotson, making his first major league start, checked the A's on five hits before tiring in the ninth.

Womack replaced him with one out and the bases loaded and struck out the last two KC hitters.

Burbick's, Woodbine Win In Pony Openers

A one - hitter by Chub Whitaker which led to a 10-0 victory for Burbicks over Litten's featured the opening of the East Liverpool Pony League Wednesday.

Whitaker struck out 16 batters in gaining the victory. While Whitaker blanked Litten's, Rick Lockhart supplied the power by driving in four runs and belting a two - run homer. Lockhart also had two other hits.

J. Moore was the losing pitcher and got the only hit for Litten's.

In another game, Woodbine edged Sevey's Drugs 7-5 in eight innings.

Sevy's scored five unearned runs including four in the first inning. With the score tied 4-4 Sevy's scored one run in the last of the sixth but Woodbine came back to tie it at 5-5 in the seventh then won it in the eighth.

Randy McVay in relief of Larry Marshall turned in some neat relief pitching fanning six batters in 2 2-3 innings and drove in the winning run in the eighth inning with a single.

A triple and single by Welsh paced Woodbine while Payne connected for a double and single. Welsh and McHenry drove in two runs each for the winners.

Sevy's collected six hits and Kyle was the losing hurler.

Trainer Hoping For Calm Damascus In Belmont Run

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Whiteley Jr. once again is playing the waiting game with the hopes he'll have a calm and relaxed Damascus when the probable field of nine 3-year-old thoroughbreds spring from the starting barrier in the 99th running of the Belmont Stakes Saturday at Aqueduct.

The 52-year-old trainer, who waited until the morning of the Preakness to bed Mrs. Edith Bancroft's ace down at Pimlico, announced today from his Delaware Park quarters that Damascus will not arrive at Aqueduct until Friday for the third leg of the Triple Crown of horse racing.

After being nervous and high strung prior to the Kentucky Derby, in which he ran third to Proud Clarion and Barbs Delight, the son of Sword Dancer was so relaxed preceding the Preakness that he took a nap, then reeled off 1 3-16 miles in a sizzling 1:55 1-5 for a 2¼-length victory.

The track handicapper has made Damascus the 6-5 choice with Proud Clarion, the Kentucky Derby winner from John Galbreath's Darby Dan Farm second choice at 5-2.

None of the others expected to be entered today figure high in the advance odds.

Co-third choices at 8-1 are Canada's Cool Reception and Reason to Hail, fourth in both the Derby and Preakness. Then come Gentleman James, well beaten seventh in the Derby at 12-1, followed by Blasting Charge and Prinkipo at 15-1 and Gaylord"s Feather and Nehoc's Bullet at 20-1.

Meantime, Loyd "Boo" Gentry, fully recovered from an attack of hepatitis that kept him from seeing the Preakness, was hopeful that a shift in jockeys would make a change in Proud Clarion.

Braulio Baeza will replace Bobby Ussery. Ussery brought Proud Clarion from far off the pace to take the Derby, but lagged a little too far back in the Preakness and had to be content with third.

With the nine starters, the Belmont will have a gross value of $148,450 built up by $125,000 contributed by the New York Racing Association.

Post time will be 5:30 p.m.

After leading 5-3, the Lawyers watched the Salem nine score twice in the seventh inning to knot the game at 5-5. The Lawyers pushed across the winning run in the seventh inning.

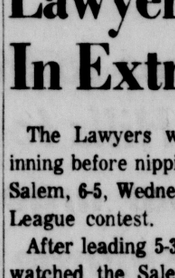

Joe Walker who came on in relief was the winning pitcher as the righthander blanked Maxims through the seventh and eighth frames.

The Lawyers collected nine hits with Eckles, Kemple and Murray having two each. Hahlen was the losing pitcher.

"I just try to make them hit my pitch," says Rich Nye, who did quite a job of hitting theirs.

The Chicago Cub rookie lefthander beat the National League-leading Cincinnati Reds 6-5 Wednesday night, although he needed relief help in the ninth inning.

But Nye didn't need help in the batter's box, a place where pitchers usually feel anything but at ease. He drove in a run and scored twice on two singles, a double and a walk.

Houston whipped the New York Mets 6-1, Philadelphia downed Los Angeles 6-0 in 11 innings and San Francisco trounced Pittsburgh 15-4 in other National League action. The Atlanta at St. Louis game was rained out.

Nye doubled in the third and scored on Glenn Beckert's single, singled home a run in the sixth and walked and scored in the Cubs' three-run eighth. His other hit was a bunt single in the fifth.

Beckert doubled home Nye and Ron Santo singled in the other two runs in the eighth as the Cubs took a 6-2 lead.

Then the Reds, who had been held to three hits by Nye in seven innings, finally got to the rookie in the eighth when they scored three times on a walk, single, two doubles and a fielder's choice. Nye finished the inning, and then Cal Koonce got the Reds out in the ninth.

Houston exploded for six runs in the sixth inning against the Mets, moving into ninth place by 13 percentage points over New York.

Three of the Astros' runs came in on singles by Jim Wynn and Bob Aspromonte and Rusty Staub's double. Ron Brand singled in two more and the sixth scored on an error by shortstop Bud Harrelson.

Dave Giusti allowed the Mets only four hits, one of them a homer by Bob Johnson, in gaining his second victory after five straight losses. He struck out eight and walked one.

The Phillies, held scoreless by Don Drysdale on six hits through 10 innings, exploded in the 11th, with Bill White driving in the first run with his first hit of the season, a single. White has been sidelined most of the season with a heel injury. He had gone 0 for 18.

After the second run scored Phil Regan replaced Drysdale, but he couldn't get the final out until four more runs had crossed the plate to put the game out of reach.

Rick Wise and Dick Hall, who took over starting the 10th, scattered eight Los Angeles hits.

San Francisco got a three-run homer from Jesus Alou in the fourth and a two-run shot by Ollie Brown an inning later in clobbering Pittsburgh and Handing Bob Veale his first loss after six victories. The Giants wrapped it up in the seventh when they scored six runs, only one of which was earned.

Gene Alley and Jose Pagan hit consecutive homers for the Pirates in the fourth.

WASHINGTON'S MIKE EPSTEIN, newly acquired from the Baltimore Orioles, takes a healthy cut at the ball during his first batting practice as a Senator Wednesday. Epstein and Frank Bertaina were traded for pitcher Pete Richert. Epstein had promised to quit baseball rather than go back to the Minors. (UPI Telephoto)

White Sox Edge Orioles; Tribe Rips Tigers 9-0

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

The pressure is getting to Carl Yastrzemski . . . and it's the best feeling he's had in seven years.

"Every time at bat means something now," Yastremski said Wednesday night after clouting his ninth and 10th home runs to help the Boston Red Sox edge Minnesota 3-2 for their fourth straight victory.

"We're playing tight ball games and you've got to be bearing down all the time," the slugging outfielder added as the Red Sox savored the heady atmosphere of third place in the American League race.

Yastrzemski has won one AL batting championship and barely missed another since joining Boston in 1961. But he has never played on a pennant contender. This year, Yaz is off to his best start ever . . . and the Red Sox are keeping pace for a change.

Wednesday night's victory over the Twins left them 4½ games out of first place.

The Chicago White Sox trimmed Detroit's league lead to one-half game, nipping Baltimore 3-2 in 11 innings while Cleveland was drubbing the Tigers 9-0 behind the six-hit, 13-strikeout pitching of Luis Tiant. New York blanked Kansas City 3-0 and Washington trimmed California 6-3 in other AL games.

Yastrzemski's leadoff homers in the fourth and seventh innings staked right-hander Darrell Brandon to a 2-0 lead and the Red Sox added another run in the seventh on a suicide squeeze bunt by Mike Ryan.

That run turned out to be the winner when the Twins chased Brandon with a two-run burst in the eighth before reliever John Wyatt stemmed the tide.

The Red Sox are 22-20 for the season, compared to 16-26 at the same point last year, when they finished ninth. "I said before the season that this team would win more games than it loses, and I still believe that," said Manager Dick Williams.

Ron Hansen's run-scoring single in the 11th lifted the White Sox past Baltimore after Boog Powell's sacrifice fly pulled the Orioles even in the ninth.

Ken Berry, whose bunt single in the sixth delivered Chicago's second run, led off the 11th with a single, took second on a sacrifice bunt and scored the tie-breaking run on Hansen's hit.

Tiant breezed to his third victory against one setback and knocked in two runs with a sixth inning single. Leon Wagner and Larry Brown each drove in three runs for the Indians, who pounded six Detroit pitchers for 16 hits.

Rookies Steve Whitaker and Thad Tillotson led the Yankees to their shutout victory, with a ninth inning assist from relief specialist Dooley Womack. Whitaker crashed a two-run homer and right-hander Tillotson, making his first major league start, checked the A's on five hits before tiring in the ninth.

Womack replaced him with one out and the bases loaded and struck out the last two KC hitters.

Trainer Hoping For Calm Damascus In Belmont Run

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Whiteley Jr. once again is playing the waiting game with the hopes he'll have a calm and relaxed Damascus when the probable field of nine 3-year-old thoroughbreds spring from the starting barrier in the 99th running of the Belmont Stakes Saturday at Aqueduct.

The 52-year-old trainer, who waited until the morning of the Preakness to bed Mrs. Edith Bancroft's ace down at Pimlico, announced today from his Delaware Park quarters that Damascus will not arrive at Aqueduct until Friday for the third leg of the Triple Crown of horse racing.

After being nervous and high strung prior to the Kentucky Derby, in which he ran third to Proud Clarion and Barbs Delight, the son of Sword Dancer was so relaxed preceding the Preakness that he took a nap, then reeled off 1 3-16 miles in a sizzling 1:55 1-5 for a 2¼-length victory.

The track handicapper has made Damascus the 6-5 choice with Proud Clarion, the Kentucky Derby winner from John Galbreath's Darby Dan Farm second choice at 5-2.

None of the others expected to be entered today figure high in the advance odds.

Co-third choices at 8-1 are Canada's Cool Reception and Reason to Hail, fourth in both the Derby and Preakness. Then come Gentleman James, well beaten seventh in the Derby at 12-1, followed by Blasting Charge and Prinkipo at 15-1 and Gaylord"s Feather and Nehoc's Bullet at 20-1.

Meantime, Loyd "Boo" Gentry, fully recovered from an attack of hepatitis that kept him from seeing the Preakness, was hopeful that a shift in jockeys would make a change in Proud Clarion.

Braulio Baeza will replace Bobby Ussery. Ussery brought Proud Clarion from far off the pace to take the Derby, but lagged a little too far back in the Preakness and had to be content with third.

With the nine starters, the Belmont will have a gross value of $148,450 built up by $125,000 contributed by the New York Racing Association.

Post time will be 5:30 p.m.

Burbick's, Woodbine Win In Pony Openers

A one - hitter by Chub Whitaker which led to a 10-0 victory for Burbicks over Litten's featured the opening of the East Liverpool Pony League Wednesday.

Whitaker struck out 16 batters in gaining the victory. While Whitaker blanked Litten's, Rick Lockhart supplied the power by driving in four runs and belting a two - run homer. Lockhart also had two other hits.

J. Moore was the losing pitcher and got the only hit for Litten's.

In another game, Woodbine edged Sevey's Drugs 7-5 in eight innings.

Sevy's scored five unearned runs including four in the first inning. With the score tied 4-4 Sevy's scored one run in the last of the sixth but Woodbine came back to tie it at 5-5 in the seventh then won it in the eighth.

Randy McVay in relief of Larry Marshall turned in some neat relief pitching fanning six batters in 2 2-3 innings and drove in the winning run in the eighth inning with a single.

A triple and single by Welsh paced Woodbine while Payne connected for a double and single. Welsh and McHenry drove in two runs each for the winners.

Sevy's collected six hits and Kyle was the losing hurler.

YOUR CAR

By Al Green

YOUR AUTO INSURANCE MAY BE HEADED FOR governmental control - - or may even be issued by Uncle. High costs, company losses, inequities, and "uncoverable" drivers" all complicate the problem. We have U.S. control now on many types of insurance, FDIC on savings, Social Security benefits, to name just two. Car insurance may be next!

FIFTY YEARS AGO, SOME MOTORISTS carried bunches of carrots with them - - to placate frightened horses they had to pass on the road!

NOW THE OVERWEIGHT PEOPLE OF THE nation, over half a million who go over 200 pounds, are asking car makers to build cars especially for them - - one that is easier to get in and out of, and to drive!

FOR TOP QUALITY, RELIABLE, EXPERT, quick and practical service work on your car, hunt up M & A DODGE, 614 Broadway, East Liverpool. Easy to find, great people in our service department to do business with. And satisfaction is guaranteed. Come in today, for sure!

WHEN A DRIVER STOPS AHEAD OF YOU to make a left turn, pull to the right side of your lane, so the driver behind you can see the left turner's signal and will understand the situation!

REMEMBER THE PLEDGE? ISN'T IT about time we set up a SAFE DRIVING PLEDGE, and thump the drum asking drivers to take it? It might do a lot of good, and what could it hurt? Think about that for a while!

race stopped because the track was impassable.

Nobody was seriously hurt in a series of mishaps that kept the yellow "no passing" light on a total of one hour and four minutes. There had been only 13 minutes of running under the yellow when Clark set the old record in 1965.

Other crashes or spinouts eliminated Gordon Johncock, Larry Dickson, Mel Kenyon, Cale Yarborough, Johnny Rutherford, rookie Wally Dallenbach, and the qualification record setter Mario Andretti, who lost a wheel.

Roger McCluskey drove a magnificent race, charging from 22nd to 3rd place before his engine blew a little beyond the 400-mile mark.

The hot drivers from the world Grand Prix circuit had a miserable day with only Denis Hulme of New Zealand running at the finish in fourth position. He was voted "rookie of the year"

Graham Hill of London and Jimmy Clark of Duns, Scotland, winners of the last two 500s, both went out early with burned pistons in their Lotus-Fords.

Jochen Rindt of Vienna, Austria, No. 2 in world road racing standings last year, retired at 270 miles with piston ring trouble and said he wouldn't be back.

Jackie Stewart of Dunbarton, Scotland, drove a fine race from a 29th place start and was among the leaders when his engine blew at 420 miles.

Keep In Trim

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Special Exercises Do The Trick

Join our exercise question session. A group of 13 housewives, exercising together, ask: "Will exercise harden excess fat, thereby making it more difficult to lose weight? Should we aim to lose a little first, then exercise to lose in proper areas to develop a better figure?"

Ida Jean Kain

Exercise promotes better muscle tone and improves circulation. Exercise of the big muscles of the body steps up calorie burning. It does not harden the fat. By restoring muscle tone, exercise helps you to look and be slimmer. Think of diet as reducing, exercise as streamlining. With an inordinate amount of excess weight to lose, your doctor may advise that you reduce 20 pounds first, in order to lighten the load before you begin to exercise. Otherwise, the most beautiful way to lose is to exercise as you diet.

A HOMEMAKER asks what to do about sagging arm muscles. "I have lost 20 pounds and I am happy with my new figure, all except my arms. The upper part of my upper arms droop. What can be done?"

From a sporting goods store, purchase a pair of iron dumbbells, weighing 2 or 3 pounds each. Grasping a dumbbell in each hand, hold arms out sidewards, shoulder level, palms up. Slowly bring arms together in front of body, keeping palms up, elbows straight. Repeat 10 times, twice daily.

A career girl who is not overweight, wants to lose the fatty pad that has formed on the inside of each knee. "Is this caused by sitting?" she asks.

The cause may be improper weight bearing. In walking and standing, the toes should be pointed straight ahead, and the weight thrown to the outer borders of the feet. If you toe out, the weight is likely to be on the inner borders of the feet, which is a weak position.

THE FOLLOWING isometric exercise can help diminish those fatty bulges. Sitting, place right hand on inside of left knee, and left hand inside of right knee. Resisting with hands, push knees together. Also, walk a chalk line, pointing toes straight ahead, placing one foot directly ahead of the other, weight thrown to outer borders of feet. This exaggerated correction brings the right muscles into action.

Finally, how to banish a girdle top roll. Stretch arms overhead, bend sidewards and hold. This action puts the pull through the bulge.

Musmanno Silent About Candidacy For U.S. Senate

PITTSBURGH (AP) — State Supreme Court Justice Michael A. Musmanno won't say if he'll try to unseat U.S. Sen. Joseph Clark.

But he unleashed another attack Wednesday on his fellow Democrat.

"It is too early for me to say whether I will be a candidate, but there can be no doubt it is not too early for the electorate to be aroused over Clark's failure as a United States senator," said Musmanno.

"I believe, therefore, speaking as a citizen and taxpayer, that Clark should be defeated.

"It would be a calamity to Pennsylvania were Sen. Clark to be re-elected. His supercilious egotism and cold fish attitude have alienated so much of official Washington that when he speaks for Pennsylvania, Pennsylvania already has two strikes against it," said Musmanno.

A pro-Musmanno group called the Alliance to Beat Clark is circulating a pamphlet around the state urging Musmanno to run against Clark, says Philadelphia attorney Joseph G. Feldman who heads the group.

New Zealand has approximately 21 million acres of its land under cultivation.

Keep In Trim

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Special Exercises Do The Trick

Join our exercise question session. A group of 13 housewives, exercising together, ask: "Will exercise harden excess fat, thereby making it more difficult to lose weight? Should we aim to lose a little first, then exercise to lose in proper areas to develop a better figure?"

Ida Jean Kain

Exercise promotes better muscle tone and improves circulation. Exercise of the big muscles of the body steps up calorie burning. It does not harden the fat. By restoring muscle tone, exercise helps you to look and be slimmer. Think of diet as reducing, exercise as streamlining. With an inordinate amount of excess weight to lose, your doctor may advise that you reduce 20 pounds first, in order to lighten the load before you begin to exercise. Otherwise, the most beautiful way to lose is to exercise as you diet.

A HOMEMAKER asks what to do about sagging arm muscles. "I have lost 20 pounds and I am happy with my new figure, all except my arms. The upper part of my upper arms droop. What can be done?"

From a sporting goods store, purchase a pair of iron dumbbells, weighing 2 or 3 pounds each. Grasping a dumbbell in each hand, hold arms out sidewards, shoulder level, palms up. Slowly bring arms together in front of body, keeping palms up, elbows straight. Repeat 10 times, twice daily.

A career girl who is not overweight, wants to lose the fatty pad that has formed on the inside of each knee. "Is this caused by sitting?" she asks.

The cause may be improper weight bearing. In walking and standing, the toes should be pointed straight ahead, and the weight thrown to the outer borders of the feet. If you toe out, the weight is likely to be on the inner borders of the feet, which is a weak position.

THE FOLLOWING isometric exercise can help diminish those fatty bulges. Sitting, place right hand on inside of left knee, and left hand inside of right knee. Resisting with hands, push knees together. Also, walk a chalk line, pointing toes straight ahead, placing one foot directly ahead of the other, weight thrown to outer borders of feet. This exaggerated correction brings the right muscles into action.

Finally, how to banish a girdle top roll. Stretch arms overhead, bend sidewards and hold. This action puts the pull through the bulge.

Musmanno Silent About Candidacy For U.S. Senate

PITTSBURGH (AP) — State Supreme Court Justice Michael A. Musmanno won't say if he'll try to unseat U.S. Sen. Joseph Clark.

But he unleashed another attack Wednesday on his fellow Democrat.

"It is too early for me to say whether I will be a candidate, but there can be no doubt it is not too early for the electorate to be aroused over Clark's failure as a United States senator," said Musmanno.

"I believe, therefore, speaking as a citizen and taxpayer, that Clark should be defeated.

"It would be a calamity to Pennsylvania were Sen. Clark to be re-elected. His supercilious egotism and cold fish attitude have alienated so much of official Washington that when he speaks for Pennsylvania, Pennsylvania already has two strikes against it," said Musmanno.

A pro-Musmanno group called the Alliance to Beat Clark is circulating a pamphlet around the state urging Musmanno to run against Clark, says Philadelphia attorney Joseph G. Feldman who heads the group.

New Zealand has approximately 21 million acres of its land under cultivation.

Junior Editors Quiz on HAIRCOMBS

QUESTION: Who made the first comb?

ANSWER: The use of the haircomb goes far back in History. Though we don't know exactly who first discovered combs, we find them made of wood, bone, or horn, in the ruins of dwellings which prehistoric men built along the shores of Swiss lakes about 5,000 years ago. The Greeks, Romans and Egyptians made beautiful combs, using close-grained boxwood and also ivory. A comb of this period, as shown, looks strikingly modern. In Asia, combs were frequently made out of buffalo horn, as shown in the comb from New Guinea, or of bamboo, as in the other example. The most dramatic use of the haircomb is undoubtedly in the huge ornamental combs of Spain, which Spanish ladies love to place on the back of the head on special occasions. Flowers are arranged in front, and the elaborate lace shawl called a mantilla is draped over the top, producing a most romantic effect. Such combs are usually made of tortoise shell. Modern American combs are generally made of synthetic plastic materials. India-rubber is often used, hardened by the process called vulcanizing.

In 1943, actor Leslie Howard was killed when a plane he was flying in was attacked by a German warplane and sunk in the Bay of Biscay.

Ten years ago — The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission said it hoped a deadlock with Britain over the exchange of atomic power developments soon would be broken.

Five years ago—Former President Eisennower defended his former Treasury secretary, George Humphrey, against charges he had profiteered from the government's stockpiling of nickel.

One year ago—An American Surveyor spacecraft made a soft landing on the moon and started sending back pictures.
